

Navy chooses Douglas-Northrop jet

'Fighter of future' could boost California employment

WASHINGTON (AP) — Risking a rebuff by Congress, the Navy chose the twin-engine F18 of McDonnell Douglas and Northrop Corp. Friday to become its multi-purpose fighter of the future, rejecting the Air Force's single-engine F16.

Undersecretary of the Navy David Potter acknowledged that "it is perfectly clear this does not meet" Congress' orders to make maximum use of Air Force air combat fighter technology and hardware.

Secretary of Defense James R. Schlesinger still must approve going into full-scale development. If built, the F18 would enter service in six years.

Potter said the planes would be assembled at the McDonnell Douglas plant in St. Louis and parts for them manufactured at the Northrop plant in Hawthorne.

However, a spokesman for McDonnell Douglas said that while most of its work would be done at St. Louis, "it was possible" some of the work may be done at its aircraft plant at Long Beach. He said he could not make any predictions as to possible employment if the Navy awards a production contract.

A Northrop spokesman said its agreement with McDonnell Douglas calls for 30 per cent of the development work and 40 per cent of the production to be done at its Hawthorne plant.

The spokesman said the initial development contract would keep its air combat fighter team together.

"Assuming we get a go-ahead on a production contract," he said, "it would mean 400 to 500 new jobs in 1975. In 1976-77 it would mean 10,000 more jobs statewide, of which 3,000 would be at Hawthorne."

Potter estimated that a force of 800 jet fighters would cost about $7.8 million each, or a total of more than $6 billion.

Loser in the competition was a team of General Dynamics Corp. of Fort Worth, Tex., and LTV of Dallas. General Dynamics is the developer of the F16, which the Air Force picked Jan. 13. The Air Force plans to build 650 F16s and the Pentagon has estimated a worldwide market for up to 3,000.

Potter said at a news conference that the F18, a derivative of the F17 which Northrop unsuccessfully proposed to the Air Force, is better designed for carrier operations than the F16. He listed approach speed and ability to handle the strains of catapult takeoffs and arrested landings as key factors on the side of the F18.

The Navy officials said the F16 is "very good in many other respects" but "does not meet our requirements for carrier operations."

Pregnant women caught in growing doctors' strike

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The city's largest maternity ward was shut down Friday and most hospitals admitted only critically sick patients due to a doctors' strike over malpractice insurance rates.

Mass hospital layoffs were anticipated for next week.

The San Francisco Medical Society said there were "no problems and no difficulties" in providing emergency medical services although striking anesthetists refused to work except in "life or death" surgery — not including childbirth.

Children's Hospital closed its maternity unit, and several other hospitals planned to shut their maternity wards down within a few days.

Some expectant mothers had to have their babies without the services of an anesthesiologist or go to one of the few hospitals where the specialists were still working.

"It's getting pretty busy here," said Helen Bain, who works at the University of California Medical Center maternity ward. Four mothers referred there from other hospitals checked in Friday morning.

The university hospital had a full staff of anesthetists on duty, and doctors said they were prepared for an influx of extra patients unable to get service at other hospitals.

"We are geared up to handle a large number of emergencies," said Dr.

Robert Willenkin, an anesthesiologist there.

"Babies are being born. You can't stop that," said Dr. John Kerner, an obstetrician who heads the staff at Mt. Zion Hospital. "But it is sort of interesting that the birth rate yesterday was off a little bit. When women are frightened they don't go into labor."

Bob Cooper, head of the Hospital Workers Union, said the layoffs would "be in the thousands by Mon-

Air crash victim hikes 6 1/2 hours with fractures

YUCCA VALLEY (AP) — A 43-year-old man who survived a plane crash and then hiked more than five miles through heavy brush and rocky hills with multiple fractures was in good condition Friday, authorities said.

Two persons with him were killed when the light plane crashed Thursday morning in the San Bernardino Mountains about seven miles southwest of here, sheriff's deputies said.

William Heath of Whittier suffered rib, pelvic and jaw fractures in the crash but walked for 6 1/2 hours to reach a small community in Morongo Valley, deputies said. They expressed amazement that he made it through the rugged terrain with his injuries.

The dead men were identified as Arthur Woodward, 51, of Montebello, owner and pilot of the Beechcraft Debonair; and Michael Lee Campbell, 33, of Walnut.

Officers said Heath told them the triad had taken off from Palm Springs Municipal Airport early Thursday and were headed for the Los Angeles area — possibly El Monte, where the plane was based. It went down about 5:15 a.m. they said.

Cause of the crash was still under investigation by the Federal Aviation Administration and the National Transportation Safety Board.

Heath, after knocking on a resident's door in Morongo Valley to report the mishap and seek medical help, was taken to a local hospital and then transferred to one in Montebello.

No shake in quake

PASADENA (UPI) — An earthquake struck Southern California Friday in an area so desolate that apparently nobody felt it.

The Caltech seismology laboratory said a quake registering 4.2 on the Richter scale shook the area about 20 miles south of Ridgecrest, near the community of Johannesburg, at 11:03 a.m.

The area is in the Mojave desert about 110 miles northeast of Long Beach.

3,000 Viet refugees on sinking ship saved

COPENHAGEN, Denmark (AP) — The Danish freighter Clara Maersk has picked up about 3,000 South Vietnamese refugees from a sinking ship in the South China Sea 50 miles south of the Mekong Delta, the owners of the ship said Friday night.

A spokesman for the Maersk Lines said the captain of the 11,000-ton vessel radioed from a position between Borneo and South Vietnam that he was in a difficult position with refugees, including children, crowding the deck, the bridge, in cabins and even in the holds.

The sinking South Vietnamese vessel was described as an old 2,500-ton freighter, but its name was not known to the Maersk Line spokesman.

Meanwhile, more than 2,000 refugees who were snatched by helicopter from Saigon hours before its surrender to the Viet Cong reached this American base this morning on their way to Guam and the United States.

The 2,000 South Vietnamese and about 100 Americans, first of at least 50,000 refugees evacuated by an armada of the U.S. 7th Fleet, were aboard the carrier USS Hancock. Eight Vietnamese air force helicopters were parked on the flight deck. Their pilots had flown the choppers packed with friends and relatives to the carrier during the massive evacuation Tuesday.

A fleet of 45 vessels participated in the evacuation, and seven other ships were due to arrive in Subic later during the day with more than 16,000 refugees. Officials said four of the ships are American from fishing boats and sampans in the South China Sea by U.S. Navy ships and then transferred at sea to the merchant vessels.

The Vietnamese who arrived on the Hancock were taken to Grande Island in Subic Bay to spend the day before being flown out on U.S. Air Force C141 Starlifter jets.

They came ashore quietly. Some women wept. Children smiled and several gave the thumbs-up sign to the crew. Many had Hancock decals on their luggage.

U.S. acknowledges more funds needed to resettle Vietnamese refugees. Story on Page A-12 merchant vessels, each carrying more than 5,000 Vietnamese.

A Navy spokesman said the refugees aboard the merchant ships would not be put ashore at Subic Naval Base in the Philippines but would remain aboard while the craft are refueled. He added they would leave within 12 hours for another destination, believed to be Guam.

Thousands of South Vietnamese were plucked

A Marine helicopter pilot, Lt. Mike Weiss, 28, of Astoria, N.Y., said he had flown more than 12 hours without a break during the evacuation.

"We went into four different points and took out a total of 199 people," he said. "We got small arms fire, antiaircraft fire and missile fire but none of it hit. We did not return fire."

The terse radio messages from the Clara

Maersk did not indicate what caused the South Vietnamese vessel to sink and gave no details of how the rescue was accomplished. The spokesman said it appeared that everyone aboard the sinking vessel had been rescued.

The shipping line spokesman said the captain of the Clara Maersk reported he had ample water for the refugees, but only normal supplies of food and other provisions for his own crew of 32, far short of enough to feed 3,000 passengers.

The spokesman said the captain had been instructed to decide in consultation with maritime authorities which port he should head for.

Among possibilities mentioned were Singapore, Manila or Hong Kong, but any of them would be at least two or three days away.

The Clara Maersk was en route from Bangkok, Thailand, with a small general cargo and had been scheduled to pick up further cargo in various Southeast Asian ports before heading for U.S. West Coast ports.

$2 million daily spent on rice, bowls, chopsticks

CAMP PENDLETON (UPI) — The U.S. government is spending $2 million a day buying food and other supplies including 18,000 bowls, 18,000 sets of chopsticks and 300,000 pounds of rice for Vietnamese refugees, it was disclosed Friday.

The magnitude of the task of caring for the homeless Vietnamese arriving every hour was outlined by Brig. Gen. Paul Graham, commander of this huge Marine Corps base.

HE TOLD a news conference there were presently 5,105 refugees living in the tents and quonset huts at Camp Talega on the northern part of the Pendleton reservation with the total expected to swell to 18,000.

Graham, who delayed his own scheduled retirement to oversee the job of caring for refugees, said he received tentative word to get ready to handle refugees last Saturday.

The definite order to handle them was not received until Monday, he said, and they began arriving by the hundreds on Tuesday.

"We had to order 18,000 cots and three blankets for every cot," he said in noting the high speed situation the Marines were confronted with. "They were sent to us from military bases all over the western part of the country."

"We are buying 18,000 bowls and sets of chopsticks. Those are the utensils the people are used to. They've been eating off paper plates but they decided they would be happy with bowls and chopsticks."

The 300,000 pounds of rice were ordered from Sacramento where much of this Oriental staple is grown.

The rate of spending at $2 million a day will drop off sharply, Graham said, because many of the purchases will not have to be duplicated. Some of the initial spending went for new water mains and installation of power lines and telephones, tables, benches, and typewriters for the enormous paper work to be done.

Cold nights at this coastal base presented an immediate problem for the refugees, used to a warmer climate, and they were issued Marine khaki field jackets.

It is a common sight to see little tykes with these jackets draped over their shoulders and dragging on the ground.

AMERICAN citizens or their dependents were cleared quickly and moved out of camp to go to various parts of the country.

The Immigration and Naturalization Service took charge of getting clearance for noncitizens and those without American sponsors.

Donald Day, INS representative, said it may take from 7-10 days for the majority of them. He said the INS must be satisfied that they get sponsors who will find jobs for them and places to live. Security checks will also be run on such refugees, he said.

Graham, discussing arrangements while the refugees remain here, said, "I

Hopeful signs despite jobless surge

Combined News Services

WASHINGTON — Chairman Alan Greenspan of the Council of Economic Advisers said Friday there is evidence that the recession is coming to an end.

But Greenspan predicted that unemployment, which reached 8.9 per cent of the work force in April, would improve only very slightly by the end of the year, and he said that inflation probably soon will rise to a 6 to 7 per cent rate rather than the rate of less than 4 per cent in March.

Greenspan's upbeat but cautious predictions were given to the House-Senate Economic Committee.

Greenspan was castigated by committee chairman Hubert Humphrey, D-Minn., and others for the administration's opposition to a number of programs to stimulate the economy. But Greenspan cautioned that the "risks of reigniting inflationary pressures" remains too great for further increases in the federal deficit.

The Gross National Product — the output of all goods and services in this country — may be slightly lower in April than March, Greenspan said, but should pick up later in the year.

While avoiding a hard prediction, Greenspan said he felt "comfortable" in California's unemployment reached 10 per cent—949,800 persons—and established a record. Story on A-12.

saying that the annual GNP growth rate should be 7 per cent by the end of the year.

Despite an unemployment rate which climbed to a new post-World War II high in April, the government reported some hopeful signs emerged in the job picture.

Total employment gained for the first time in seven months. Factory layoffs increased but at a declining rate and there was a slight rise in the length of the work week. Ford administration officials said these indicators suggested a further weakening of the recession with employment deteriorating less drastically.

"Most employment indicators which tend to move early are improving and therefore suggest the possibility that the forces of recovery are beginning to stir," the commissioner of labor statistics, Julius Shiskin, told the congressional Joint Economic Committee.

Employment, which had declined by 2.6 million since September, increased last month by 240,000 to 84.1 million. But because more people went looking for work in April and only about half could find jobs, unemployment also increased.

The Labor Department said joblessness rose by 200,000 in April to a total of 8,176,000 out of a civilian labor force of 92.3 million. The previous month joblessness increased by 500,000.

The jobless rate, since hitting 8 per cent in January, since has remained at the highest level in 34 years. It had not exceeded the 8 per cent rate since 1941, when the annual rate averaged 9.9 per cent out of a labor force of 55.9 million.

Most economists predict the rate will rise above 9 per cent before it begins a gradual decline later this year.

The Labor Department said joblessness rose by 200,000 in April to a total of 8,176,000 out of a civil-

Indians give up S.D. meat plant

WAGNER, S.D. — Seven Indians Friday night ended their occupation of the packing plant on the Yankton Sioux Reservation, surrendering to federal authorities after state troopers fired tear gas into the plant. No one was injured. Late in the evening, troopers began firing tear gas canisters into the plant to drive the Indians out. "Apparently the people inside thought they were being fired upon and came out with their hands up," South Dakota Highway Patrol Col. Dennis Einsaach said. The group took over the Yankton Sioux Industries pork plant early Friday, seizing two hostages, both of whom were released a few hours later. Officials said they still did not know the reason for the takeover, the second in two months at the plant.

'Too much power'

WASHINGTON — Special Watergate Prosecutor Henry Ruth Jr. said Friday that the 1971 break-in at the office of Pentagon Papers defendant Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist "went far beyond any power ever imagined" for the executive branch. Ruth filed a 152-page brief with the U.S. Court of Appeals in opposing the appeal of former White House Domestic Affairs Adviser John Ehrlichman and three others convicted in the case. Responding to Ehrlichman's contention that the entry at the office of Ellsberg's doctor was justified on national security grounds, Ruth said: "...There can be no question that the search of the office of Dr. (Lewis) Fielding...went far beyond any power that ever could be imagined for the executive branch."

Meantime, in Charlotte, N.C., testimony was completed Friday in the trial of a $1.2 million damage suit against former White House official H.R. Haldeman and several others for allegedly barring an antiwar group from a rally attended by then-President Richard Nixon.

Nuclear talks delay

WASHINGTON — Nuclear weapons negotiations in Geneva will recess shortly for about a month to allow top officials here and in the Kremlin to make "political decisions" on how to proceed with the 10-year treaty to be signed by President Ford and Soviet Party Chairman Leonid Brezhnev, it was learned Friday. "There is no crisis," said a principal U.S. decision-maker. However, he acknowledged that the technical talks were deadlocked in the sense that they now require some fresh policy decisions. The official also confirmed that the Ford-Brezhnev summit, already delayed past late June, may not get under way even by September.

Jet falls into homes, 7 killed

VECHTA, Germany — A Belgian Mirage jet fighter crashed into a row of homes in this small north German town Friday, leaving seven persons dead, 19 injured and two missing. Police said five children perished in the ruins of their flaming homes, the body of an adult was dragged from the rubble and the pilot also died. The plane crashed during a return flight to Bierset near Liege after completing what a Belgian air force spokesman said was a routine exercise over Germany. The jet was in a flight of five French-designed Mirage fighters on the training exercise. Police said the plane skimmed the tops of trees and the pilot apparently sought to steer his crippled craft clear of the residential area rather than bail out.

Socialist protest

LISBON, Portugal — Thousands of Socialists marched through central Lisbon in a mass demonstration Friday night against their Communist rivals, bringing the two parties close to open confrontation. Watched by 300 heavily armed troops on trucks and armored cars, the Socialists gathered in downtown Rossio Square, nearly filling it, and then marched arm-in-arm shouting "Socialism yes, dictatorship no" and "The Socialist Party won." They referred to the April 25 election in which the Socialists emerged as the strongest party, well ahead of the Communists. The march was the most tense action yet in an increasingly bitter rivalry between the two parties. It was called after Thursday's May Day celebrations, organized by the Communist-dominated central trade union whose guards barred Socialist leader Mario Soares and other Socialist officials from taking part.

Dollar gains power

LONDON — The dollar rose sharply against the pound Friday despite a Bank of England attempt to shore up the flagging British currency by raising its lending rate and buying quantities of sterling. Exchange dealers said the dollar's improvement was due only in part to the pound's weakness. The American currency also rose against other major European currencies. Dealers said the dollar was benefitting from the growing belief that the recession in the U.S. was beginning to bottom out. Good American foreign trade figures also helped. The pound, in contrast, worried speculators because of Britain's all-time high inflation rate of 21 per cent.

Hardliners dominant

BELFAST, Northern Ireland — Protestant hardliners held a dominant position with nearly half the seats decided Friday in an election for a constitutional convention designed to end nearly six years of sectarian bloodshed in Northern Ireland. But even as first results came in from Thursday's voting for a 78-seat convention to draft a new constitution, gunmen shot and killed a Protestant bus inspector in a bus depot. The Rev. Ian Paisley and William Craig, bus opponents of sharing power with the province's one-third minority of Roman Catholics, were among 32 winners declared by Friday night in the proportional representation poll designed to give the minority Roman Catholics some power.

'Colonialism' hit

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina — Foreign Minister Juan Antonio Tack of Panama charged Friday that U.S. control over the Panama Canal is a "typical case of colonialism." He threatened to take the issue to the United Nations in September. The foreign minister, on a swing to drum up support for the Panamanian position now being negotiated with Washington, said the talks were "in a difficult final stage." Argentina is on record as favoring an American withdrawal from the Canal Zone, a policy consistent with the regional "integrationist" attitudes of the late President Juan D. Peron.

Crowd cheers Ford, crowns daughter

Combined News Services

For the first time since the height of the Vietnam war, an American President got only applause and no jeers in a parade Friday when President Ford and daughter Susan, the festival queen, attended a Shenandoah apple blossom festival.

The crowds lining the 29-block route of the annual Shenandoah Apple Blossom Festival Firemen's Parade in Winchester, Va., waved, applauded and smiled at the President as he stood with his arms raised in greeting.

"You know, that was an especially friendly crowd. I didn't see a single demonstrator," Ford told aides in his helicopter when he left the festival where he had crowned Susan, 17, "Queen Shenandoah XLVIII."

White House officials and newsmen said they could recall no such demonstration-free parade or motorcade in almost a decade. Police and White House officials estimated the parade crowds at up to 60,000 persons.

Ford personally presided over Susan's festival coronation.

The Apple Blossom Festival marks the yearly opening of the greenish-white blossoms in the orchards surrounding the northern Shenandoah Valley city of Winchester which styles itself as the "apple capital of the world."

Royal

The Danish royal court announced that Princess Benedikte, a sister of Queen Margrethe II, gave birth to a daughter Friday in Copenhagen. The 31-year-old princess and her German husband, Prince Richard zu Sayn-Wittgenstein-Berleburg, have two other children.

Cabbie taken for long ride without fare

When cabbie David Holman gets stuck for a fare, he really gets stuck.

Holman, 22, picked up two women passengers in Windsor, Ont., and agreed to drive them to Florida. When he got to Lauderdale-by-the-Sea, the women asked him to stop so they could buy some bikinis. That was the last he saw of them.

"There I was without a dime, an eighth of a tank of gas and 1,300 miles from Windsor," lamented Holman.

He didn't despair, though. He started home, ran out of gas and hitchhiked to Orlando, where the Salvation Army put him up. Then he called the cab company for money.

"I guess I'll get fired when I get back," he said, "but I don't care. I had a good time, and I got a bit of a suntan. I'll be able to find another job."

Holman was on the way home Friday, with $60 from his parents and $100 from the cab company. He had to pay $45 from the total to get his cab back. It was towed away from the highway where he left it when it ran out of gas.

He said he met the girls last Saturday, and at first they wanted to go to Detroit Metropolitan Airport to catch a plane. Then, he said, they asked him to drive them to Florida.

"I saw they had several 50-dollar bills and a whole bunch of 20s and I didn't really think I'd get burned," Holman said. He added the girls told him they had rich relatives in Florida. Fare for the ride would have totaled about $1,000.

Sign away benefits

My father, who used to live in Massachusetts, moved to Canada in January to live with one of his brothers on Prince Edward Island. He told me that the Canadian authorities would not allow him to move there unless he "signed away" (his words) all his rights to his Social Security benefits and his old age pension. He terminated his benefits prior to moving to Canada and his meager savings account is dwindling. Can Action Line find out if it is true that my father had to give up his only means of support in order to live in Canada? He became a U.S. citizen in the 1920s and paid into Social Security for many years. B.C., Lomita.

A LITTLE LEARY...

ANOTHER OF ME WIFE'S HINTS... WRAPPIN' ME LUNCH IN A ROAD MAP

Your father is entitled to collect his Social Security benefits while living in Canada, according to spokesmen for the Canadian consulate general's office and the Social Security Administration headquarters in Baltimore, Md. While living outside the United States, he is not eligible for his old age pension, which is now called Supplemental Security Income, but many senior citizens collect their Social Security retirement benefits while living in Canada, Mexico or abroad. A Canadian official told Action Line he couldn't understand why your father was led to believe he had to terminate his payments. To get his benefits reinstated, your father will have to go to a Social Security office in the United States, said a spokesman for the administration. The office in Bangor, Maine, is probably the closest one to him.

Attendant care

My mother suffered a stroke about three months ago and is now in a convalescent hospital. She is unable to use her left leg and arm, but might be able to with therapy. I would like to have her live in my home, but I can't take care of her alone. She is on Medicare and Medi-Cal, and I'd like to know if there are any benefits under these programs that would allow me to hire someone to help me take care of her at home. I'd also like to know how I can find out which convalescent hospitals offer physical therapy programs. W.J., Long Beach.

Neither Medicare nor Medi-Cal covers the type of attendant care you're talking about, said spokesmen for both programs. In some cases, Medi-Cal will pay for the services of a registered nurse in the home but only if a doctor requests such professional care for a patient. You may be eligible, however, for an attendant care grant from the Los Angeles County Department of Public Social Services if your mother meets certain low-income requirements. To apply, contact the DPSS office at 1945 Long Beach Blvd. You can find out which convalescent hospitals offer the type of therapy your mother needs by contacting the Los Angeles County Central Registry of Adult Care Facilities, 3175 W. Sixth St., Los Angeles, Calif. 90005, 8386-5950, extension 1117.

On the floor

We had a Congoleum floor covering installed in our kitchen on June 6 by Linoleum Discount City, 1204 Redondo Ave. In November we noticed small splits appearing in the floor and contacted Paulo Perikli, the owner of Linoleum City. Despite repeated calls and several inspection trips by Perikli or his employees, the only thing that has been done is to put a plastic sealer over one of the splits. Can you help us with this problem? Mrs. G.L.W., Lakewood.

Both the floor covering manufacturer and Perikli deny there is any serious problem with the floor. At our request, a representative of Congoleum Industries Inc. in North Hollywood inspected the floor and concluded there was "no evidence of product deficiency." Perikli said he would apply more of the plastic seam sealer, if you wanted, but he feels you are exaggerating the problem. "The few splits there can be seen only if you get down on your hands and knees and search for them," he said. "The floor is beautiful - it'll last her 20 years. If it were damaged I'd replace it."

Official statement

I love baseball and would like to be an umpire, but I'm 40 years old. I've coached amateur baseball teams, but I don't know how to become an umpire. Are there any umpire training schools in this area? M.A., Long Beach.

You're too old to try to become a major league umpire now, but there are opportunities for you to officiate at school and other amateur games. The Long Beach Sports Officials Association offers training classes for umpires and referees for amateur baseball, football, basketball, track and volleyball games. The next baseball umpire course won't be held until February, but you can join the association, which is open to men and women, now and get general information on how to become a sports official. For more information, call Gene Smith, the secretary of the association, at 429-8393. To become a major league umpire, you first have to complete a recognized training program, such as the one offered by Al Sommers' School for Umpires in Daytona Beach, Fla., and such schools generally require their students to be between the ages of 18 and 32. After completing the course, an umpire then tries to find a job in the minor leagues where he may remain for the rest of his career. Even if he becomes one of the 48 major league umpires, he will have spent several years in the minors.

State tightens rules on labeling claims

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Labels on a package are the same as advertising and can be required to be truthful, the state Attorney General's office said Friday.

Deputy Atty. Gen. Robert Hatton said California consumer officials and law enforcement agencies should be able to regulate labels which make claims about a product.

"The law now authorizes the attorney general, city attorney, district attorney or Department of Consumer Affairs to require anyone who makes some kind of advertising claim to substantiate the claim," Hatton said in an interview.

"This brings labels under the same requirement. If a label on a can of antifreeze says it protects your car to zero degrees, you could require them to substantiate it," he said.

The attorney general's opinion was requested by Taketsugu Takei, state director of Consumer Affairs.

Takei could not be reached for comment.

FBI effort to oust radicals at UCLA told

Associated Press

The FBI tried to get a radical organization thrown off the UCLA campus in 1962 by sending an anonymous letter to UC officials chastising them for being "blind and naive," according to the agency's own records.

The effort to discredit the Young Socialist Alliance was referred to as a "Disruptive Program" in a series of memos involving the FBI offices here and in Washington D.C. from May 15, 1962 to Aug. 8, 1962.

A LETTER finally was sent to then Chancellor Franklin D. Murphy and UC Regents calling for the removal of the YSA as a legitimately recognized group on campus. It was signed, "Perturbed Parent."

"UCLA, like any American university, has a sacred duty toward our youth — to serve youthful, immature minds not only by teaching the constructive but by protecting from the destructive," the letter said in part.

At the time, the YSA was affiliated with the Socialists Workers Party.

The letter and the memos leading up to it were released by the FBI about a month ago as part of thousands of other documents sought in a civil rights lawsuit filed by the Political Rights Defense Fund in New York. The suit, which is still pending, seeks to prevent secret disruptive activities by the FBI and other federal law enforcement agencies.

THE order to send the letter to Murphy and the Regents apparently was signed by then FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover. The signature is crossed out on the document that was released but below it is the word "director."

One of the memos said the hope was that the anonymous letter would prompt the board of regents to investigate the organization and throw it off campus. But no action ever was taken against the YSA and it retained its status on campus.

$100,000 record club settlement

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Capitol Record Club and several affiliated corporations agreed Friday to pay $100,000 as part of a settlement of consumer complaints, California officials said.

The companies also agreed — without admitting any guilt — to a consent decree in Contra Costa County Superior Court barring them from misleading advertising and unfair business practices, the officials added.

Deputy state Atty. Gen. Peter DeMauro said the three corporations based in New Rochelle, N.Y., agreed to pay $100,000 for civil penalties, attorneys' fees and an enforcement trust fund.

"There were about 250 complaints at the time the action was filed," he said in an interview. "The only time complaints were settled was when a governmental agency or other mediator stepped in."

"They denied all of the allegations in the complaint but they agreed to pay all costs and to set up an enforcement trust for the next three years," DeMauro added.

The decree is effective throughout California, DeMauro said.

Agreeing to the consent decree were Longines-Wittnauer Inc., Credit Financial Corp., doing business at Capitol Record Club, Citadel Record Club and Capitol Stereo; Tape Club; and Credit Services Inc., doing business as Longines-Symphonette.

The consent decree enjoined the companies from failing to give customers 10 days in which to reject offered goods; failing to mail paid for merchandise within six weeks; demanding payment for goods when the merchandise was represented as free; referring to collection agencies bills that were not owed; and advertising that customers could purchase merchandise at times when supplies were not sufficient to meet demand.

Prepaid health care canceled for 8,000

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The Brown administration announced Friday it will terminate a contract May 10 that provides prepaid health care services for about 8,000 low income residents in Los Angeles.

The Health Department said the termination of the contract with Community Care Health Plan of Los Angeles was the result of recent legal action brought by Atty. Gen. Evelle J. Younger because of the organization's precarious financial condition.

THE department testified recently that the plan should be continued but a Los Angeles judge agreed with Younger and put the plan into receivership.

Prepaid health plans catering to welfare recipients, first begun under former Gov. Ronald Reagan, have come under heavy criticism and Gov. Brown has ordered that the plans be reviewed on a case-by-case basis.

Patients covered by the prepaid plan in south-central Los Angeles automatically will revert to the state's regular Medi-Cal program unless they join one of the other 14 other health plans in the Los Angeles region.

"We want to be certain that these people will have continued access to medical care 24 hours a day from May 10 on," said Deputy Health Director Steve Passin. "Therefore, the department is making sure these people have Medi-Cal cards in their possession by that date."

MEDI-CAL cards are used by beneficiaries to acquire the services of the physicians they choose. These physicians in turn bill the state for the care they provide.

Under a prepaid health plan, the state pays the contractor a flat rate to provide all necessary care for patients who otherwise would be covered by Medi-Cal.

Women blast survey on sexual enjoyment

By CHARLES CHAMBERLAIN

CHICAGO (AP) — It seems women didn't like the survey that said women didn't like sex as much as men.

The survey, presented in a paper at the Midwestern Psychological Association convention by a human development specialist, drew gasps from some women and arguments from others.

Dr. Paul Cameron of St. Mary's College of Maryland said in his paper that men of all ages found more pleasure in sex and that before middle age they listed it as their most pleasurable activity.

Women surveyed never listed it as their most enjoyable activity and in some age groups even put it behind housework and sleeping.

A number of women argued that the survey didn't account for social pressures that would make women deny they enjoy sex.

"Women may think sex is No. 1 but when questioned they give a socially desirable response rather than a truthful one," was the way it was explained by Ann Frodi, 30, of Göteborg, Sweden, who is on a fellowship at the University of Wisconsin.

Pete Lawson, 34, of Lakewood Community College in White Bear Lake, Minn., agreed. "If you ask a woman if she enjoys sex, she thinks you are propositioning her. She is in a culture role. She loves sex but doesn't want to let anyone know. You can't get true answers in such a survey."

George Hurley, a 26-year-old graduate student, said men naturally would rate sex No. 1 because "there is peer pressure to be potent and talk about it."

Lenore De Fonso, 34, of the University of Wisconsin-Rock County near Janesville, Wis., had the same reaction. "Women, perhaps, are more enthusiastic about other things but that doesn't mean they don't enjoy sex as much," she said. "Men are supposed to enjoy sex and they brag about it. Women don't make a big thing of it."

The 35-year-old Cameron, who presented the paper Thursday, said he was somewhat surprised at the survey's results and thought younger women in particular would rate sex enjoyment higher than they did.

"But," he added, "anyone who thinks the survey is not truthful is leaning on a weak reed."

Cameron eased off, however, when an angry young woman approached him and asked if there weren't some hidden factors in replies of women.

"Well, I think women would enjoy it more if the men performed adequately," he said.

Despite inflation-recession

More money spent dining out

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press

The American consumer is under a microscope.

Trying to figure out how much people spend, what they buy and why they pick one item instead of another has become a full-time job for some analysts in government and industry.

Several recent surveys are providing additional clues about at least a few American spending patterns and preferences when it comes to eating out.

Inflation and recession have prompted many people to report they are going to restaurants less often. A survey by Yankelevich, Skelly and White, Inc., for General Mills, Inc., found that 45 per cent of those polled said eating out in a nice restaurant was a luxury and 37 per cent said they were saving money by not going to restaurants.

At the same time, however, Census Bureau data indicates January 1975 sales for U.S. eating and drinking establishments were $2.80 billion, 16.6 per cent higher than they were a year earlier. After adjustment for inflation — higher menu prices — the increase was 4.5 per cent, according to the National Restaurant Association.

The Bureau of Labor Statistics, which compiles the Consumer Price Index, is updating the list of items it checks. The last update was in 1961-62. The new list, based in part on extensive surveys in 1972-73, won't be ready until 1977, but some preliminary results of the latest poll have been released.

Among the findings was that the average American family — 2.9 persons with an income of $10,185 a year — spent $8.15 a week for food away from home during the 1972-73 survey period.

The existing Consumer Price Index already measures increases and decreases in the amount Americans spend at restaurants, snack bars and other eating places.

The bureau checks more than 1,000 outlets in 56 cities, collecting menus and pricing typical breakfasts, lunches and dinners, but the system has some drawbacks.

Fast food chains generally are not included in the outlets checked because they were not a major part of the market in 1961-62 when the list was drawn up. Ethnic restaurants also are not usually checked because their foods don't fit easily into the rather bland menu categories that the Labor Department drew up more than a decade ago.

A spokesman for the Bureau of Labor Statistics conceded that the restaurant segment of the Consumer Price Index may not reflect American eating or spending patterns and said the new checklist being prepared will take some of the changes in taste into account.

The National Restaurant Association, representing more than 125,000 eating establishments, is making its own check of where people eat, how much they spend and why they select one particular restaurant.

The results of the survey haven't been completely compiled, but preliminary findings are available. The association asked more than 3,000 persons how many times they had eaten out in the past week and found that 22.9 per cent said once, 14.9 per cent said twice, 7.6 per cent said three times, 2.7 per cent said four times, 4.2 per cent said five times or more and 47.3 per cent — the largest segment by far — said they hadn't eaten out at all. The remaining four-tenths of a per cent didn't answer.

What does it all cost? The restaurant group asked people how much they had spent on prepared food — including lunches at work and take-out snacks — in the past week.

About 13 per cent spent $5 or less, 25 per cent spent between $5 and $9, 30 per cent spent from $9 to $19, 14 per cent spent between $19 and $30 and 10 per cent spent more than $30. The remainder said they spent nothing or answered that they didn't know.

HEW search under way for 1.3 million deserter dads

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Department of Health, Education and Welfare took the first step Friday toward establishing a nationwide system to find fathers who deserted their children and obtain support payments from them.

The government estimates that there are as many as 1.3 million deserting fathers and that public support of their children adds $1.5 billion to the costs of the biggest family welfare program, Aid to Families with Dependent Children (AFDC).

Under the proposed HEW regulations, mothers would lose their AFDC benefits if they refuse to cooperate in tracking down the father of their children but would be rewarded with a cash incentive of up to $20 monthly if they do.

As conditions of eligibility, AFDC applicants or recipients would have to obtain and furnish to a welfare agency their Social Security number and assist in locating the other parent, establishing paternity of a child born out of wedlock and obtain support payments.

If the mother or, in rare cases, father refused, her or his share of the family's benefits would be cut off and the welfare agency would handle payments for the children.

In addition, HEW would turn over confidential AFDC case records to law enforcement personnel and other public officials to help locate the deserting parent.

A number of states already have been operating parent locator systems. Some have reported collecting as much as $5 for every $1 spent to obtain child support.

Recent changes in the law now authorize the government to pay half the costs of state and local efforts.

An HEW parent locator system also would allow states to tap into Internal Revenue Service, Social Security and federal court records to locate missing parents and determine their ability to support their children.

In signing the legislation last January, President Ford agreed with the objectives but said the law "raises serious privacy and administrative issues" and should be amended.

The new procedures are scheduled to take effect July 1, 1975. States face the loss of 5 per cent of federal matching funds for AFDC on July 1, 1977, if they haven't established effective support programs.

Car costs for '76 models seen rising by 3 per cent

DETROIT (AP) — Car prices will go up this fall when the 1976 models are introduced.

But auto industry analysts say the increases will be considerably below the record price hikes of 450 put through on 1975 models last September. Some put the hikes in the $120 to $180 range.

"I'm looking for about a 3 per cent price increase at the start of the model year, compared with about 10 per cent last time," one analyst in New York said.

Chrysler Corp. Friday became the second automaker this week to say price increases this fall are inevitable despite the slump in car sales.

General Motors said Tuesday it would raise prices on its new models. Neither company said how much it would raise prices, although each said cost increases have slowed in recent months.

Ford Motor Co. and American Motors have not discussed their pricing plans for 1976 models. But financial analysts say all four firms will raise prices within a competitive range.

Meanwhile, the industry plans to increase auto production this month by 9 per cent over April in anticipation of a spring upturn. Planned output of 642,500 cars this month would be the highest figure since last November.

GM, Chrysler and AMC plan to operate all their assembly plants next week, including Chrysler's Belvidere, Ill., car plant, which has been shut for two weeks. Some 3,700 workers on layoff there will be recalled next week.

However, the three firms will not recall any of their combined 150,000 hourly employees still on indefinite layoff.

Chrysler Chairman Lynn Townsend said at a news conference that the firm's overall costs are up from last fall, although some material prices have declined and the rate of increase has slowed.

"People have to realize 1976 cars are going to cost more than 1975s," Townsend said.

"Price increases are absolutely unavoidable. All you have to do is look at the first quarter (financial) results of the four auto companies. There's an absolute need for price increases," he said.

Chrysler had a record net loss of $94.1 million in the first quarter of 1975, dragging the industry into its first overall loss for a quarter since the depression of the 1930s. General Motors was the only car maker to operate in the black last quarter, and it's earnings were the lowest in 29 years.

Analysts said the new-model price increases probably would not have a significant adverse effect on sales, which currently are running at a 14-year low. They said sales this year have fallen off primarily because of the recession and dwindling consumer confidence, not price increases.

"When the industry is operating at record losses, the customer has to pay a little more for the product and the companies have to operate more efficiently," said an analyst in Detroit.

GAO sees public hazard in diagnostic products

WASHINGTON (AP) — Unreliable diagnostic products which could pose a serious hazard to the public are being marketed in the U.S., the General Accounting Office said in a report released Friday.

The GAO said an official for the Center for Disease Control estimates that 25 per cent — or about 750 million — of all diagnostic test results are unreliable.

The center, an arm of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, also said that erroneous diagnostic tests result in unnecessary medical treatment, withholding needed medical treatment, and lost income costing the economy about $25 billion annually.

The GAO study looked into diagnostic products used by doctors to analyze specimens taken from the body. These products include either drugs or medical devices.

The federal Food, Drug and Cosmetic Act prohibits the sale in interstate commerce of medical devices that are adulterated or misbranded, but doesn't require that medical devices be proven safe and effective before marketing.

At the GAO's request, the Center for Disease Control tested 44 diagnostic kits purchased in July 1973. The center judged that 32 of the products were unsatisfactory for diagnostic use.

In addition, during fiscal year 1974, the center tested about 2,000 other diagnostic products samples and 450 failed to meet standards, said the GAO, Congress' watchdog agency.

"TODAY MORE than ever, doctors are relying on laboratory tests to help diagnose, treat, or control medical conditions and diseases," said the report. "An inaccurate diagnosis may result in injury to an individual's health, death, or at a minimum, needless medical expense."

The GAO said the Food and Drug administration has been ineffective in controlling the diagnostic products.

Until only about two years ago, the GAO said, the FDA did not have a formal program to control such diagnostic products.

THE GAO report also contended the FDA did not always inform foreign countries, which received recalled diagnostic products, of that action. From January 1971 through February 1974, the FDA had not notified foreign nations of 23 of 35 recalled diagnostic products, it said.

"Consequently, products recalled in the United States could continue to be marketed and used elsewhere," said the GAO.

The GAO said it made the study because of congressional awareness in consumer protection, and to determine the effectiveness of federal controls in insuring the reliability of diagnostic products.

GAO Comptroller General Elmer A. Staats said HEW "generally agreed" with the findings. He said HEW has said that several actions had been or would be taken to implement the GAO suggestions.

The recommendations included quick development of product class standards and the establishment of criteria for the manufacturing of the diagnostic materials.

The GAO also recommended that Congress enact legislation tightening the controls on the diagnostic products.

New investigation of DEA reported

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Justice Department acknowledged Friday that a special investigation into possible mismanagement or corruption within the Drug Enforcement Administration has been under way since March.

Atty. Gen. Edward H. Levi ordered the internal probe, which is headed by Michael DeFeo, on detachment from the organized crime strike force in Kansas City, and two criminal division officials, Thomas Henderson and Arthur Norton.

THEIR investigation reportedly covers a wide range of issues, from rumors of sexual escapades by agents to mismanagement by top officials.

The Washington Star said that one case involves an alleged bribery incident, and another the protection of a narcotics figure, John R. Bartels Jr., head of the agency since it was formed two years ago in a merger of the drug enforcement arms of the Justice Department and the Customs Bureau, was questioned at length Thursday by the investigators.

Bartels was quoted as saying of the probe: "I think it's great."

Gulf chairman reportedly paid bribes to protect oil

By LEONARD CURRY
UPI Business Writer

WASHINGTON — Gulf Oil Chairman B. R. Dorsey told federal investigators of $4.2 million in bribe payments to foreign government officials to protect his company's oil assets, Senate sources said Friday.

The payments were first disclosed in closed-door discussions with the Securities and Exchange Commission, the sources said. Later Dorsey was questioned in executive session by a Senate foreign relations subcommittee chaired by Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho.

A subcommittee spokesman said public hearings will be held on May 16 to air Dorsey's closed-door testimony.

ALTHOUGH Dorsey was not specific about the country in his talks with the subcommittee, one Senate source said Dorsey claimed the bribes were paid to protect Gulf interests of "several hundred million dollars."

The payments could have gone to officials in any of 15 countries including Venezuela, Korea, the Philippines and Italy. Church was expected to learn from Dorsey the name of the country where the bribes were paid at the May 16 hearing.

SEC officials expressed surprise that testimony taken in private from Gulf executives had been leaked to the news media. In Pittsburgh, a Gulf spokesman refused to either confirm or deny that Gulf Chairman B. R. Dorsey had discussed alleged bribery payments.

The SEC charged Gulf in March with establishing a $10.3 million fund from which $5.4 million was diverted for political gifts in the United States.

The balance of $4.9 million was unaccounted for in Gulf overseas subsidiaries. But the SEC documents showed that $4.2 million was disbursed to foreign politicians.

The Senate Foreign Relations subcommittee on multinational companies said Dorsey has been called to testify either May 12 or May 16 on the statements to the SEC.

A subcommittee spokesman said Dorsey asked that the identity of the country be sheltered because the politicians who accepted the money are still in power.

The spokesman said Gulf operates in 70 countries, but the disclosures to the SEC had trimmed the list of bribe payments to about 15 countries.

DORSEY is scheduled to be the first corporate executive to testify in a series of hearings that could take months to complete, the spokesman said. Others expected to be summoned are executives of United Brands Co. and Northrop Corp.

United Brands has acknowledged making $2 million in bribe payments to officials in Honduras and an unnamed country, believed to be in Europe. Northrop has consented to SEC charges of keeping a "secret fund" from which $476,000 was made in gifts to U.S. politicians and some $30 million to agents of countries buying Northrop's F5 jet fighter.

The Wall Street Journal first reported the existence of the SEC documents and SEC and Senate sources confirmed that discussions were held with Gulf officials on $4.9 million disbursed overseas.

Appeals court cancels awards

Nader airline victory upset

WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal appeals court Friday overturned a lower court ruling that would have required Allegheny Airlines to pay consumer advocate Ralph Nader and a Connecticut citizens' group $50,000 for bumping Nader from an overbooked flight.

The U.S. Circuit Court for the District of Columbia ordered the case sent back to the lower court for a determination on whether Allegheny's actions in bumping Nader and in overselling the flight were done in the belief that its procedures were approved by the Civil Aeronautics Board.

Nader filed the suit after Allegheny failed to honor his reservation on a 1972 flight from Washington to Hartford, Conn. Nader was scheduled to speak at a rally in Storrs, Conn., which was being held by the Connecticut Citizen Action Group.

U.S. District Court Judge Charles R. Richey ruled on Oct. 18, 1973, that Nader had been victimized by Allegheny's practice of accepting more reservations than it has seats available on a flight.

He also ruled that the practice of selling more seats than were available from the public because Allegheny did not state this practice in its advertisement. Richey found that this omission was "tantamount to willful and wanton misconduct."

The district court judge ordered Allegheny to pay

Nader $25,000 and the Connecticut Citizens Action Group $25,000. He also ordered the airline to pay Nader $10 for phone calls and other expenses.

The appeals court reversed the lower court finding that Allegheny had discriminated against Nader by bumping him from the flight because it found the ruling "tainted by erroneous legal conclusions."

It ruled the award of $25,000 to the Connecticut group was improper because that group was not in a legal class where it could recover.

It suspended the decision that Allegheny had committed fraudulent misrepresentation by not disclosing its overbooking policies in its advertising to allow the Civil Aeronautics Board, which regulates the airlines, to determine whether Allegheny's reservations practices were fraudulent.

And it ordered Richey to consider, even if he found Allegheny had fraudulently misrepresented its reservations practices, whether Allegheny had taken its actions in the belief that the CAB had given its approval to such actions.

Probe of CIA hit by ACLU

WASHINGTON (AP) — The American Civil Liberties Union sharply criticized the pace of the House Intelligence Committee's investigation of the CIA on Friday and suggested that Chairman Lucien Nedzi, D-Mich., resign his post.

"This House investigation has about it every appearance of absurdity," the ACLU said in a letter to Nedzi, adding that if he does not intend to conduct an aggressive investigation of the CIA "we suggest you resign your chairmanship." The letter was signed and made available to the press by Charles Morgan, director of the ACLU's Washington office.

THE LETTER noted that although the committee had been in existence for 2 1/2 months, the 10-member panel has yet to choose a staff director or chief counsel.

"Your failure to staff the committee raises grave doubts as to the ability of the House of Representatives to even investigate, let alone oversee, this richly and secretly financed secret agency," the letter said.

Use of governor's house still unsure

SACRAMENTO (AP) — California's new governor's mansion is nearing completion, but state officials say they have not decided how to use the sprawling $1.3 million house.

Gov. Brown has vowed not to live in the mansion, which is being built on an American River bluff 14 miles east of downtown Sacramento.

And a Brown aide, David Fox, says the governor is still considering several uses for the mansion.

"In any event, it's our intention to use it in such a way so that it will be usable in the future as a governor's mansion," Fox said.

"There won't be any significant construction to modify it."

Fox said the 12,000-square-foot, Spanish-style house could be used as a conference center, office building or museum.

"And there's always the option of leaving it vacant," he added.

Brown called the mansion an unneeded "Taj Mahal" during his election campaign and vowed not to live there. After taking office, he claimed his decision would save the state $1.5 million over the next four years.

Brown currently lives in a $250-a-month state-owned apartment less than two blocks from his state Capitol office. He pays the rent out of his $49,100-a-year salary.

Charles Pinkerton, superintendent at the mansion site, estimated Friday that the mansion is 60 per cent finished and should be done by early August.

"I'm running two weeks behind because of weather," he said. "But we hope to pick up a little time."

"The roof is in place and we are putting the water-proofing on now," Pinkerton said, adding that workmen would soon begin installing the roof's Spanish tile.

"It's starting to shape up," he said.

Under current law, the mansion — one of Gov. Reagan's major projects — must be used as the governor's home. But a bill by Assemblyman John Vasconcellos, D-San Jose, would allow the Department of General Services to determine another use for the house if a governor decided not to live there.

Vasconcellos measure, AB 14, has been passed by the Assembly and is now awaiting action in the Senate.

Councilman Thomas J. Clark, Fourth District, Long Beach, has endorsed Wallace Edgerton, Second District challenger to incumbent Bert Bond in the May 13 general election.

Clark's endorsement statement said he feels Edgerton "will offer to his constituents in the Second District as well as the entire city a quality of honest and vigorous leadership that is needed in government today."

Edgerton's campaign also announced endorse-

Thomas improving

From Our State Bureau
SACRAMENTO — Vincent Thomas of San Pedro, the dean of the California State Assembly, has been hospitalized here with a respiratory ailment and is expected to miss several more weeks of work.

Thomas was stricken April 17, the day after his 67th birthday. Sources said he had pleurisy which developed into pneumonia.

Officials at Mercy Hospital said Friday Thomas was in good condition.

On March 11, 1969,

Thomas underwent open heart surgery at St. Mary's Hospital in Long Beach, and missed several months of work.

A Democrat, he was first elected to the Assembly in 1940 and his 34-plus years makes him senior to all legislators except Sen. Randolph Collier, D-Yreka, elected in 1938.

New Medi-Cal bill would alter benefits

From Our State Bureau
SACRAMENTO — Medi-Cal standards will be changed for 4,500 Californians under terms of legislation this week approved by the Senate and sent to the Assembly for consideration.

The bill, SB 63 by Sen. Joseph Kennick, D-Long Beach, alters Medi-Cal payment provisions for aged and disabled persons. A similar measure was approved last year but vetoed by Gov. Reagan.

Three other Kennick bills also received Senate approval.

One, SB 437, permits a police security detail to be established at the California State University and Colleges headquarters facility currently under construction in Long Beach.

Another will streamline the licensing of vehicle dealers and other occupational licenses.

Rail system study urged

Supervisor Baxter Ward Friday called for study of a proposed light rail system using old Pacific Electric rights of way.

Ward said he is suggesting two starter lines, one from Los Angeles to the Long Beach-San Pedro area and one from Los Angeles to Canoga Park in the San Fernando Valley.

He said the estimated construction costs for the starter lines and light overhead trolleys would run to about $500 million, which he said is much less than the cost for the heavier rail network proposed last year by the Southern California Rapid Transit District.

Ward discussed his proposal at a press conference with Los Angeles

City Mayor Tom Bradley in the tunnel beneath the Subway Terminal Building in downtown Los Angeles. He said the tunnel could be used to bring the overhead trolleys into the downtown area without tearing up major streets.

The supervisor said the Long Beach line would cost about $300 million and the Canoga Park line about $200 million.

On top of this he said it would be necessary to buy about 120 passenger cars carrying up to 70 persons each. The light cars would each cost about $500,000.

Ford planning initiatives' in education field

By HOWARD BENEDICT

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford said Friday he hopes to take initiatives in education that "we can get our economy moving." He said he would like classroom teachers to play a larger role in making federal education policy.

"I am confident there are some bright clouds beginning to appear that we can get our economy moving," Ford told directors of the National Education Association. "Once this is done, I hope to take some initiatives in education at the federal level."

The President said his administration will make an effort to appoint more teachers to national advisory councils and commissions.

"THERE IS a tendency not just in education, but in other areas to have a repetition of individuals being reappointed to certain groups or appointed to other groups," Ford said.

"We must have a lot of talent that can be drawn upon in a variety of ways

People and ideas Children who can't play

By MARK CLUTTER Religion Editor

Let us pray for children who cannot play.

Douglas F. Dollarhide, former mayor of crime-riddled Compton, once said: "No one pays attention to the children. No one gives them roller skates. No one takes them on camping trips. No one teaches them to play tennis."

"Their fathers, if they are present at all, cannot guide or teach them. Their mothers sometimes try, but they have their problems too. Remember, these are poor people who grew up in slums or in rural poverty."

"The kids have no choice. They live on the streets. Their only friends are the gang. They learn about knives and guns. They learn how to steal. They learn how to maim or kill a boy who lives three blocks away. And sooner or later many become wards of the state. And nobody cares."

A REPORTER told about a talk he had with a 10-year-old boy who had been arrested for eating grapes in a supermarket. "I asked him," the reporter said, "what he had for breakfast."

"We don't eat breakfast in our house."

"What did you have for lunch?"

"We don't eat lunch at our house."

"What have you been doing all day?"

"Mama told us to get the hell out and not come back till supper time."

A GRANITE-FACED police captain talked about children who cannot play.

"I'm bitter against society," he said. "We have the Boy Scouts, a wonderful organization. But the boys who are in the Scouts don't really need it. Without the Scouts their parents and society would teach them how to become men."

"The kids I arrest have the making of good Scouts. They are certainly brave. They are loyal and kind to the gang. They want to be men. But no one is interested in showing them how."

ERMA SAVAGE, the former director of special activities at the California Youth Authority Reception Center in Norwalk, told of her experiences with bad boys.

"I came to work here as an office worker," she said. "I couldn't help watching the boys. I knew that some of them were bandits, rapists and murderers. But they were also teen-age boys."

"I began to realize that one reason they were in trouble was that they were out of touch with the human race."

Mrs. Savage on her own and with a little encouragement from the state started doing something about it.

She dragooned college girls to come to parties. (The young felons, like other teen-age boys, were at once shy and delighted.) She brought in old people. (Young people like grandpas and grandmas.) She organized a library. (A boy in a solitary lighted cell needs something to read.) She brought in many church groups. "With them you have to be careful," she said. "If they come in shouting 'Jesus!' they turn the boys off. But if they come in and just act friendly as they would with any young people it means a lot."

A COACH at the Youth Authority said, "Most people find it hard to believe that there are teen-age boys who have never learned to play. We get many of them. The street culture considers a 'square' to bounce a bag of tennis balls."

"They come here with the most murderous prejudices. The whites hate blacks and chicanos; the blacks hate whites and chicanos and the chicanos hate whites and blacks."

"So we organize them into teams with an ethnic mixture. First, we have to teach them how to play. And we have to teach them team loyalty."

"The wards are only

Unparalleled Episcopal judgment Bishop guilty of contempt

WASHINGTON (AP) — In an unparalleled step, an ecclesiastical court judged the head of the Episcopal church guilty of contempt Friday for refusing to appear as a witness.

The court said presiding Bishop John M. Allin of New York, the church's chief spiritual leader, had violated church law by spurning a proper court subpoena.

The finding was issued shortly before the close of a three-day trial of a local priest, charged with disobedience for letting an irregularly ordained woman lead a communion service.

ALTHOUGH the diocesan court had no power to impose penalties on Allin, he later could be charged and brought to trial in the matter.

The unanimous action by the five-member court was unprecedented in the two-century history of the denomination, the American wing of the worldwide Anglican communion.

Attorney Llewellyn C. Thomas, president of the court, said the contempt judgment was issued with "humility and with great and deep regret," but added that there was no acceptable excuse for Allin's absence.

ALLIN, saying he had engagements in Canada, Arizona and Missouri, sent messages saying he would not be present and offering to give a deposition if needed.

However, the court declared that "he disregarded the subpoena and our explicit expectation" that he be present and was "in violation" of a canon making it the duty of any church member to heed an ecclesiastical court summons to give evidence.

Meanwhile, the trial of the Rev. William A. Wendt, a local pastor accused of disobeying Washington's Bishop William F. Creighton, ended with statements by counsel of both sides.

A DECISION in the case was not expected for 10 days to two weeks. If found guilty, Wendt's penalty could range from a reprimand to temporary suspension or permanent deposition from the priesthood.

Those same penalties could be invoked should Allin be formally charged, tried and found guilty of violating church law.

The court's contempt judgment was relayed to secretaries of the House of Bishops and House of Deputies, the two branches of the church's bicameral legislature.

WENDT testified that he did not disobey any explicit orders of Creighton in permitting the Rev. Allison Cheek of Annandale, Va., to act as a priest last Nov. 10.

It was only a "request not to do it," Wendt said. He said the bishop apparently made the request because it was felt that the event could hurt the cause of women in the priesthood.

However, "we were not convinced and in conscience decided to go ahead," Wendt said.

HE SAID the action was "not taken flippantly, but with a great deal of prayer and consultation among many people," including the bishop.

"I told Bishop Creighton — 'You're my hero for women's ordination,'" Wendt went on. "I blessed him and blessed God that he has upheld women in

Historic First Congregational

Church plans for revitalized downtown L.B. future

By MARK CLUTTER

"We are looking back on our long history, we are enjoying the present and we are projecting into the future," said the Rev. David M. Reed, senior minister of First Congregational Church, Third Street and Cedar Avenue.

The future looms very large at First Congregational. Its ambitions are linked with the plans for a renovated downtown Long Beach.

Sunday, however, will be a day for the past. Fifty-five persons who have been members for more than 50 years will be honored at the morning worship service. Afterwards they will be guests at a roast beef dinner. The entertainment will have the theme of "the roaring 20s" when they were young.

Mrs. Henry Kendall Booth Sr. has the longest membership. She came to First Congregational in 1908 when her husband became pastor. He continued as pastor until his death in 1942.

First Congregational is the second oldest church in Long Beach. First Methodist is a little older.

First Congregational began in 1887 when Mr. and Mrs. Jotham Bixby brought a missionary from Los Angeles. Long Beach was a tiny village — there were only 564 persons here in 1890. The Bixbys, already prospering pioneers, were thinking of the town's spiritual future. They built a parsonage and Cerritos Hall, which was used for both worship and secular meetings. Ten years later the Bixbys gave the property at Third and Cedar to the church.

IT WASN'T easy going in the early years. Once the church split over doctrinal issues. It later reunited.

The present church was dedicated in 1914. Under the leadership of Dr. Booth it became one of the largest Congregational churches in the United States. The pews can seat a congregation of 1,300, a larger crowd than the church has had in recent years.

Pastors tend to stay a long time. There have been five senior ministers in this century. The shortest tenure was four years.

Although the church treasures its past, the emphasis is on the present and future, Reed said.

"As the characteristics of downtown have changed, we have changed, but this will always be a downtown church," he said. "Our ministry is here. Some other churches have moved to the suburbs. The idea has been rejected here."

"We are preparing for future growth and change. Long Beach is planning downtown renovation which is expected to cost $1 billion. We are making our presence felt in the urban setting as it is now. We are looking forward to more dynamic service in a revitalized downtown."

"An important project is the renovation of the church plant. After all, this building was dedicated in 1914. Of course, other wings were added later. We are thinking in terms of $750,000 to $1 million. But anything we do will be in keeping with the architecture and furnishings we now have. These are traditional."

FIRST Congregational is traditional and somewhat aristocratic, but it is also deeply involved in the life of the community, which in downtown Long Beach is filled with urban stresses, including much poverty.

Music, for example, is of prime importance. The Moeller pipe organ is said to be among the 10 best organs in California. It has much use. The Concert Art Series is a long established tradition. And there is the Bach "Marathon" in which the best organists of the Southland play nothing but Bach. The musical emphasis is on the traditional and classical.

But there is also "the Pastor's Pantry" — a supply of groceries for those in desperate need. The Church participates in Meals on Wheels, which last year delivered 64,000 meals to shut-ins and the elderly. It supports the Long Beach Rescue Mission, the Inner City Ministries and the Downtown Neighborhood Center.

ONE OF its big projects is the Summer Day Camp for children from kindergarten through junior high. Fifty volunteers take care of 200 children daily from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. at the church.

The program includes games, learning, a weekly trip, swimming lessons and many other things that fascinate children. During the school year the camp continues on Saturdays. The parents are counted in with free dinners and other activities.

One of the great recent achievements of First Congregational was the building of adjacent Pilgrim West at a cost of $4 million. It is a retirement apartment complex which houses persons of low incomes past a certain age. It has 280 residents.

"This is something that is very much needed," the pastor said. "We had 1,600 applications for the 200 apartments. There should be many more projects like this."

When the renovation of Long Beach begins, many persons will have to be resettled. First Congregational hopes to be of service in this often painful transition.

A downtown church has many elderly people. But it also has a strong youth program, Reed said. "We find that young people and the elderly often understand each other very well. We try to see to it that they have contact."

THE CHURCH has 1,100 members, but the local residents who actually support it number 750. The budget is $130,000. "Our people have learned to make money go a long way," Reed said.

He talked briefly about characteristics of the Congregational Church. "We are the church of the Mayflower Pilgrims," he said. "We believe in God, in Jesus Christ the Savior and the Holy Spirit."

"We are liberal in philosophy and we are completely autonomous. Each congregation governs itself."

"We are, however, part of the United Church of Christ, which came into being when we merged with the Evangelical and Reformed Church, which was of German origin. Through the centuries there have been other mergers. There are some 7,000 churches in the United Church of Christ."

The church has three ministers: Reed, senior minister; Bruce V. Talbert, assistant minister, and Mitzi N. Eiltz, student intern.

Mrs. Eiltz, a LBSU graduate, will be going to theological school next year prior to ordination. She is 22. "We treat her like a full clergy person," Reed said.

Book review

Horrid

RELIGION, 2101 A.D. Who or What Will Be God? by Hiley H. Ward, Doubleday, $7.95.

The future is always horrid. That's why even the most fascinating science fiction has a repulsive quality. And that's why many readers will not like this fine book.

Let's imagine the elderly George Washington sunning himself on the veranda of Mt. Vernon. He is dreaming of the past and future as old men do. He asks himself what the future will be for the nation he helped found with sword and statecraft.

He has a blinding vision, a god's eye view, of Los Angeles County of 1975. He sees it all — the swirling freeways, the massive industry, the towering skyscrapers, the pleasant suburbs, the tawdry slums. And he sees in a flash how people live — their hedonism, their desperation, their depersonalization, their bored mobility.

The Father of His Country shudders violently and signals his attendant slave to bring him a tall glass of rum.

We who live in that future aren't so horrified although we have our moments of horror. We are used to the here and now. It is our world.

Ward's book explores most of the possibilities of the future of religion in the years leading to 2101 A.D. It is not light reading for a plain Baptist between bedtime and sleep.

Ward, a former award-winning religion writer for the Detroit Free Press, is a man of amazing erudition. Although, judging by his picture, he is still a young man, he seems to have explored most of the chaos of religious ideas in the world today. He also has background in the history of religion. And he is a science fiction writer and an addict of futuristic literature.

Someone described the plays of George Bernard Shaw as a "chaos of clear ideas." The phrase applies to this book. Almost any page is interesting, but the total effect is confusing.

He believes that Christianity — and Judaism, Islam, Hinduism and Buddhism — will survive in some form.

This reviewer feels that he overlooks the survival power of great spiritual ideas.

For examples:

"What doth the Lord require of thee but to do justice and love mercy and walk humbly in the sight of God?"

Or the Summary of the Law: "Love God and thy neighbor as thyself." Such ideas have survived millennia of change. Surely they will live for another 126 years. — Mark Clutter

Easter

Easter will be celebrated by the 200,000 Eastern Orthodox Christians of the Southland tonight in Greek, Russian, Antiochian, Romanian and Serbian churches.

The Greek Orthodox Church in Long Beach is the Assumption of the Blessed Virgin Mary Church, 1643.

The services traditionally begin at 11 p.m. and continue to 1:30 a.m. The Vespers of Love is held on Sunday. Lamb is the traditional Sunday feast.

The Orthodox observe a different Easter because of a different calendar and method of reckoning the moveable feast. There are more than 250 million Orthodox Christians in the world.

POSITIVE THINKING

Life Drama

I made a speech at a convention held at a hotel in White Sulphur Springs, W.V. some time ago. They have a couple of beautiful golf courses and most of the convention visitors take the opportunity to play as often as they can while at the hotel.

On this particular occasion I was having breakfast in the dining room with in some years. While we were visiting people kept coming up to our table and congratulating him on his golf game of the day before, so I assumed that he had played very well indeed. He looked healthy, strong and vigorous, full of enthusiasm and zest for life.

"Fred," I said, "I heard you were sick, but this doesn't sound like it. And you certainly don't look sick to me. You're the picture of health."

"I was sick, though," he said. "I was very sick but was operated on for cancer successfully. I had good physicians and a great surgeon and they got it all out. Just before coming here, I had my final five-year check-up and they tell me all is well. Wonderful, isn't it?"

"Great," I agreed, "and, believe me, I'm happy to hear about it but you must have had quite a few battles of the spirit to fight during those anxious times."

"Yes," he answered. "It was a matter of life and death. But I fought the battles effectively, for you see I had another physician going for me, and, believe me, there is great skill and healing in His touch. Also, I found that He is more than a Physician: He is a Friend, and this Friend stayed with me and brought me through." Then he added, "My doctor gave me some advice which helped a lot. Perhaps you would be interested in it."

Fred took a folded slip of paper from his wallet and gave it to me. It read:

1. Conserve your energy. Don't race your motor, don't rush. Work, eat and play leisurely.

2. Do not hesitate to refuse taking on unimportant, burdensome tasks.

3. Stay calm and serene. Do not fret or worry or allow yourself to become unnecessarily stirred up with emotion. Control emotion.

4. The past is past. Do your best today and let it go at that. Do not be apprehensive about tomorrow; it will take care of itself. Most worries never come to pass.

5. Put your trust in God and forget all fear. He has a plan for you. So who or what can be against you.

He took the paper back from me after I had copied it, carefully replaced it in his wallet and leaned across the table toward me with a seriousness that deeply touched me. He continued, "Do you remember when we were boys back in Ohio? They taught us to have faith in God to try to live the way He wants us to live. Well, I want to tell you, Norman, that when the going gets really tough that God is the answer. He has given me my life back again. I can't thank him enough."

I knew that if my friend had had to die, he would have done it with greatness. He has what it takes to die or to live. That is what we all have, got to have. To die requires faith and to live requires the same. Carlyle said that each of us must be either a hero or a coward. Like my old friend, all of us have a hero built inside. We have what it takes. Never forget that!

Mission emphasis

Mission Emphasis Week will be featured by a series of speakers at Lakewood First Presbyterian Church, 3955 Studebaker Road.

The Rev. Ted Peck will speak on the problems of world hunger Sunday, 7:30 p.m.

International missions will be spotlighted by a panel of Fuller Seminary graduate students from Taiwan, Cameroon, Mexico and Korea, moderated by Dr. Richard Waddell, assistant pastor and retired Brazilian missionary, Tuesday, 7:30 p.m.

Riley Sunrise, a Hopi Indian, will speak on problems of Indians Wednesday, 7:30 p.m.

Fred Newkirk, director of Inner City Ministries, will speak on the problems of the disadvantaged and dispossessed in the inner-city areas of Long Beach. The Rev. Dale Whitney, pastor of Geneva Presbyterian, will present slides and information on Long Beach Mission Area Probe, conducted by a group of Presbyterian churches. The meeting starts at 7:30 p.m., Thursday.

A potluck dinner featuring international dishes will be held Saturday at 5:45 p.m. Dr. Paul Pearson, a Fresno pastor and former missionary to Brazil and Portugal, will be the guest speaker.

A reckless counsellor is wine, strong drink a riotous friend; the man who is swayed by these, call not wise. — Prov. 20:1.

here for about a month. At the end of that time we have black, brown and white fighting black, brown and white in fair play and team loyalty."

AMERICAN Christians have always been keen on foreign missions.

But what about our heathens here at home? What about children who have never roller skated or gone swimming or hit a baseball — but who know all about knives and guns?

One of those kiddies, once his beard has begun to sprout, may murder your mother for the five dollars in her purse.

We have a duty to the world — as the Council of Churches, the Vatican, various denominations and Jewish organizations keep telling us. But what about our duty to our brother Americans? If we can face that problem and solve it, surely we will have more strength to help peoples across the seas.

"PEOPLE often come to me for counseling," a pastor said, "only to discover that they can't talk. It is hard for anyone to discuss a failing marriage or dark depression or a feeling of guilt."

"So I break the ice by saying, 'Tell me about your financial troubles.'"

"The person is surprised. 'How did you know that?' he says."

"I know it because almost everyone, including the rich, have financial troubles. And I know that most people will talk about their money problems. And I know that money problems usually involve personality problems. Presently they will be talking about their deepest fears and worries."

"In my work I have learned a lot about troubles."

"Everyone thinks he is unique — and in a way he is. And he thinks that his troubles are unique, that no one ever suffered what he is suffering. This is not true. Most of us have the same problems although in varying degrees. When a person begins to understand that, he can start to solve or live with his troubles."

A BUMPER sticker says, "The Devil made me do it."

A liberal, usually soft-spoken Long Beach pastor thundered like an Old Testament prophet against the slogan, "The Devil can't make you do anything. When you do wrong, you do it through your own choice."

Churches are becoming concerned about the present flurry of interest in Satanism, demonology and witchcraft. The Presbyterian Church in the U.S. asked the Rev. Shirley Guthrie, a theologian, to prepare a study on "The Problem of a Personal Devil and Demons."

The study says: "Acceptance of the reality of a personal Devil and demons must never be used to excuse or justify human sinfulness."

Interest in the Devil, he says, "must not become so central and intense" that demonic powers "consciously or unconsciously are assumed to be equal to God."

We had better recognize that evil does exist, he believes.

"Modern history has taught us that whether or not evil is itself personal, it can be horribly personalized in political, military, scientific and religious leaders and groups of people who support them and are influenced by them."

Among you, the greatest of all is to be the servant of all; the man who exalts himself will be humbled, and the man who humbles himself will be exalted. — Mt. 23: 11-12

Opinions, please

What about sex?

The Judeo-Christian tradition commands strict monogamy — or sometimes in the past strictly regulated polygamy. The unwed are expected to be celibate. Sex for the fun of it up and down the street is prohibited.

These are ancient laws. What about today? The physical consequences of sexual irregularity have been greatly reduced — although not entirely eliminated. Any half-bright woman can prevent pregnancy. And with a little medical sense venereal disease can be prevented or cured.

So what is the problem? The problem concerns every living American.

The divorce rate is something like 1-to-2 marriages in the United States, 1-to-1 in Los Angeles County. Divorce to most people is not an easy matter. It is like self-performed surgery. Necessary perhaps, but painful.

And it involves children, women on welfare, dislocated men, unhappiness and depersonalization.

Does this rule out the "free" way of life recommended most blatantly by Playboy and Cosmopolitan magazines and echoed in much of the popular media?

Should the criminal laws prohibiting certain sexual activities between consenting adults be amended or repealed?

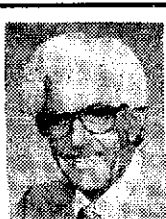

Perhaps the key question about sex was stated by a Long Beach pastor recently. He said, "Everyone from Holy Writ to the jukebox tells us that Love is the answer. It seems to me that Love is the problem."

How should we solve the problem in "this year of grace 1975?" How can men and women love each other better?

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE

How can you help them "find themselves"?

If you can help your young people feel there's a law of good governing their lives, you're giving them something to hold to.

And there is such a law. It's rooted in God, divine Principle, and His love for each of His children.

Perhaps you could offer your teen-agers the opportunity to attend a Christian Science Sunday School. They can learn more about the Bible and Christ Jesus' teachings, and how to experience God's law of good.

ALL YOUNG PEOPLE TO THE AGE OF 20 ARE WELCOME TO ATTEND OUR SUNDAY SCHOOLS

More refugee funds seen as numbers grow

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Administration officials Friday acknowledged that the number of South Vietnamese refugees needing to be resettled continues to rise, and now stands at about 120,000.

The disclosure came as President Ford authorized U.S. entry for about 30,000 more South Vietnamese refugees now sailing for the Philippines.

High government officials assembled at the State Department Friday afternoon took a hard new look at the situation, prior to asking Congress early next week for more funds to pay for evacuation, maintenance and resettlement.

One official said when Ford informed House Speaker Carl Albert April 30 that the administration would need at least $400 million he was estimating on the basis of 70,000 refugees to be resettled in the United States.

"BUT if you're talking about twice that figure, of refugees, you're talking about twice the costs," one State Department official said.

Earlier, State Department spokesman Robert Funseth said the President had, in addition to ordering eased entry for refugees headed for the Philippines, instructed that similar authority be given for other refugees who fled from Vietnam but whose whereabouts are unknown.

"The administration believes it has a moral obligation to help these refugees who fled from the Communist takeover in Vietnam," Funseth said.

Other officials said the United States is actively seeking to place South Vietnamese refugees in foreign countries to ease the cost and resettlement problem.

Canada, Australia, New Zealand and Great Britain have quietly expressed interest in taking South Vietnamese with personal and family ties in those countries, one State Department official said.

U.S. embassies abroad have been instructed by Secretary of State Henry Kissinger to sound out their host countries on the question of accepting refugees.

According to the latest statistics available at the Indochina Task Force on Refugees at the State Department, 8,094 refugees have already been resettled in permanent homes in the United States.

Another 4,387 were located Friday morning at Camp Pendleton and at Ft. Chaffee, Ark., with more arrivals scheduled.

Funseth said that so far about 117,500 refugees either have been evacuated by the United States or have fled Vietnam by other means. This total, he said, includes the 30,000 now sailing on fishing boats for Subic Bay in the Philippines, escorted by the U.S. Navy.

The authorization ordered by Ford permits the refugees to be admitted into the United States immediately, eliminating time-consuming administrative procedures.

600 foreigners out of Cambodia

ARANYAPRATHET, Thailand (UPI) — More than 600 foreign refugees from the French embassy in Phnom Penh reached the Thailand border today. Most appeared to be in good health.

The refugees, all of those who had been confined to the embassy since shortly after the fall of Phnom Penh to the Khmer Rouge on April 17, reached the frontier on a convoy of buses at 10:15 a.m. local time.

The refugees were to be loaded aboard air conditioned buses for the four-hour trip to Bangkok.

There was no advance word of their arrival until about 20 Khmer Rouge officials and troops came to the border crossing point here. They were accompanied by three foreigners dressed in clean khaki uniforms who acted as spokesmen for the refugee group.

The three were a United Nations official who had been in Phnom Penh at the time of its capture and two French embassy officials.

They spoke briefly with military attaché Lt. Col. Jean Roubert of the French embassy in Bangkok, who turned and waved his arms to the waiting crowd of relatives, officials and newsmen.

"They have them all," Roubert said.

want their impression of the U.S. to be a good one. I want them to feel welcome. I don't want them to feel as if they are being battered pillar to post."

Graham said he talked Thursday night to a man who turned out to be the assistant minister of finance in the South Vietnamese government and who fled Saigon with practically nothing.

"It was almost embarrassing to me how happy he was to be here and how grateful," the general said.

There were numerous reunions of sorts.

Two members of UPI's

Saigon staff, Nguyen Anh Tuyet and Nguyen Noc Anh, discovered a photographer with the wire service insignia on his camera and they joyously identified themselves.

U.S. Navy Capt. Mil Moore arrived with an armload of clothing for a South Vietnamese flyer here with his mother and other relatives. while but then we'll start up."

But Jerry Wurf, president of a public employees' union, said in a statement that the unemployment rate could be 12 per cent by the time the economy begins to recover.

"How much misery will it take to convince the administration and the Congress that unemployment is the nation's No. 1 problem and jobs are the No. 1 priority?" Wurf said.

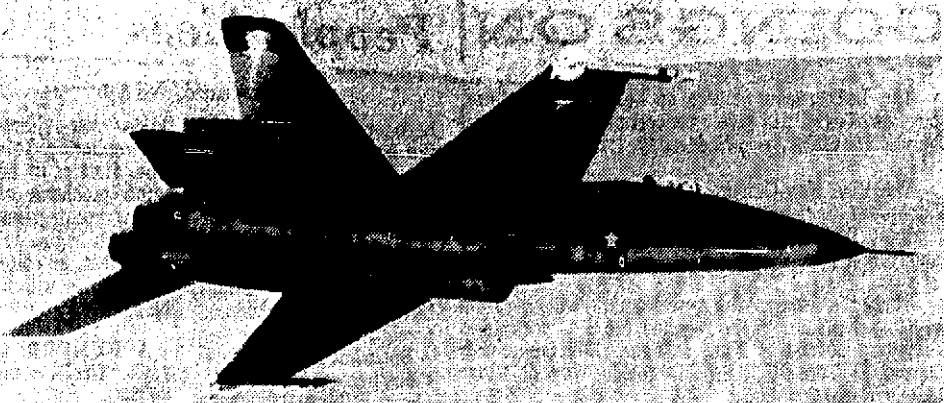

HOPEFUL SIGNS

Appearing before the same committee as Shiskin, Greenspan said unemployment at year's end is likely to be just "a shade under where we are now."

But Greenspan told the committee that he saw "distinctly hopeful evidence" of an economic rebound that will be between "moderate and vigorous" during the second half of the year.

"We're approaching the end of the recession," Greenspan said. "We may wobble on the bottom for a Schlesinger could decide not to approve development of the F18 and might choose instead buying more of the Navy's current F14 fighters. Each additional F14 would cost at least $12.4 million. Potter said he would rather get the new F18 rather than more F14s.

The Navy's second-ranking civilian official appeared confident of Schlesinger's okay and said the real hurdles would come in presenting the Navy's case to Congress, probably starting next week before a Senate appropriations subcommittee.

"I guess I am an optimist," he said. Under the action Friday by the Navy, the McDonnell Douglas-Northrop combination will get relatively small contracts totaling $6.4 million to continue design studies pending congressional action on full development.

If Schlesinger and Congress both approve, the Navy would then enter into contracts for research and development work on the plane and its engines, which will be developed by the General Electric Co. of West Lynn, Mass. A total of $110 million is in next year's defense budget for this purpose.

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy and Reps. Thomas P. O'Neill, Torbert MacDonald and Michael Harrington, all D-Mass., issued a statement welcoming the Navy's decision on the F18.

They said the Pentagon announcement "should be a tremendous boost in morale for the skilled aircraft engine craftsmen in the Lynn and Everett area and prevent the closing of the GE Everett plant, which presently employs 1,300 workers."

Potter told newsmen "we made our selection based on Navy requirements" rather than with an eye toward foreign sales.

Some Navy sources believe the F18 would be appealing to Europeans because of its two engines.

Four NATO countries — the Netherlands, Belgium, Norway and Denmark — have been weighing the relative merits of the F16 and the French-built Mirage F1 as a replacement plane for their aging U.S.-manufactured F104s.

The four NATO countries are in the market for 350 new fighters and Pentagon officials are hopeful that West Germany and other countries will buy the U.S. F16. So far as is known, the rejected F17 has not been considered by the four NATO countries.

The Navy action appeared to be contrary to the urging of Congress in a report last year that the Navy and Air Force buy different versions of the same lightweight jet fighter.

Purchase of the same basic plane was urged by the House Appropriations Committee in a report accompanying its defense appropriations bill.

The Navy and Air Force once before tried to develop the same basic plane — the controversial TFX — but the effort failed when the Navy said it could not build the plane for aircraft carrier use.

The Navy and Air Force later decided to develop the separate F14 and F15, which are now becoming their mainstay heavyweight jet fighters.

Record Cal. jobless—949,800

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Ten per cent of California workers were without jobs in April, pushing the state unemployment rate to the highest level since record-keeping began 25 years ago, the state announced Friday.

Out of work last month were 949,800 persons.

Jim Lorenz, director of the Employment Development Department, said the seasonally adjusted unemployment rate rose to 10 per cent in April from 9.3 per cent in March.

The new figure is the highest since state records were begun in January, 1950.

"The normal Spring gains in employment just didn't occur," Lorenz said.

He cited as reasons a "continuing slack in the economy" and "unusual cool weather that delayed the state of food-processing and similar industries."

The national unemployment rate in April rose to a 34-year high of 8.9 per cent.

Lorenz said the number of unemployed persons declined by 2,700 since March. But, he said, normally at this time of year 75,000 workers are taken off unemployment rolls.

Asked about future rises in the rate, a department spokesman said, "We don't know what is going to happen next month. The rate should have leveled off this month, but it didn't."

The number of Californians with jobs was 8.4 million, an increase of 58,600 over the previous month, Lorenz said.

"But most of the gain was in agriculture, which rose from 219,300 to 251,100, while the nonagricultural industries were way behind normal growth," he said.

"We had a gain of only 7,800 workers in nonagricultural industries over the year, compared with a gain of 247,300 workers in the previous year," he added.

Over the past year, he said, there was a 6.2 per cent decrease in the number of manufacturing jobs and a 15.8 per cent in the number of construction jobs, he said.

Ford takes full charge of U.S. Mideast policy

WASHINGTON (AP) — Taking direct charge of U.S. Middle East policy, President Ford set up a rendezvous with Egyptian President Anwar Sadat and pushed arrangements Friday for a meeting with Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin.

U.S. officials said Ford's aim was to smooth the way for a successful Geneva peace conference when it eventually convenes and to reaffirm American "preeminence" in the troubled region.

Ford's action is part of a broad diplomatic offensive built on his already announced summit meeting with leaders of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization countries in Brussels May 29-30.

Besides seeing Sadat in Salzburg, Austria, June 1-2, the President will stop in Spain and Italy and have an audience with Pope Paul VI on what the White House called "humanitarian issues of mutual interest."

Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, who will be with Ford, will hold separate conferences with other European leaders, sources at the State Department said.

Ford's wife, Betty, who has been troubled by bad health, will accompany him on her first overseas trip as First Lady.

The meeting with Rabin is the subject of current discussions with Israeli officials. It is likely to be held in Jerusalem or Washington some time after the President completes his tour.

Ford's direct intervention into Middle East policy is the first major step taken by the United States since Kissinger's Sinai mediation collapsed in late March.

In the interim the Soviets became active, drawing high-level envoys from Iraq, Syria and Egypt to Moscow. U.S. officials said that this represented efforts to achieve a successful Geneva conference.

A U.S. task force headed by Undersecretary of State Joseph J. Sisco is due to complete within a week the administration-ordered reassessment of ways to settle the Arab-Israeli dispute.

At the same time, Israel's request for $2.5 billion in new military and economic aid is being weighed. Talks on new jet fighters and missiles have been suspended in the meantime.

Ford's first stop is Brussels. He will go on to Madrid, May 31, to Salzburg June 1 and to Rome June 3 where he will see Italian President Giovanni Leone as well as the Pope.

A state visit to Washington by West German President Walter Scheel, originally scheduled for June 2, was rescheduled for June 16-19.

Kissinger is expected to attend a meeting of the CENTO (Central Treaty Organization) in Ankara in advance of the NATO summit.

Kissinger's meditation in the Middle East foundered when Egypt and Israel declined to budge from their initial demands. Egypt wanted an Israeli withdrawal from two strategic mountain passes and Abu Rudeis oilfield, seized in the 1967 war, while Israel insisted on a nonbelligerency pledge.

U.S. officials remain fearful that the area will erupt into war within a year unless there is considerable negotiating progress.

53,701 see Sutton tame Padres, 3-0

By GORDON VERRELL
Staff Writer

Is the Dodgers' pitching staff better than last year's staff which missed by 0.07 of leading the National League in earned-run average?

Andy Messersmith thinks so. So does Tommy John, who's not even pitching yet, and so does the manager, Walter Alston.

To prove the point, Don Sutton hurled a five-hit shutout to beat the San Diego Padres, 3-0, before a Ball Night turnout of 53,701 fans at Dodger Stadium Friday night.

It was the biggest crowd this season in the National League and it witnessed the Dodgers' eighth successive victory which improved their Western Division advantage to 3½ games.

Sutton's shutout was his second this year, lowering his earned-run average to 1.64, and it was his 38th shutout of his career, tying him with Nap Rucker for third spot on the Dodgers' all-time list, 11 behind the leader, Don Drysdale, and just two behind Sandy Koufax.

"To even be mentioned in the same breath with people like that is quite a thrill," Sutton said after posting his 14th victory in his last 15 decisions over the last two seasons. "I consider Koufax the greatest pitcher who ever lived."

Ironically, the only loss he's suffered since last August was last week to these same Padres.

"After the way they humiliated me down at San Diego, I'm awfully proud to beat them tonight," he said after running his 1975 won-lost mark to 5-1.

In doing so he struck out nine for the third time this year and now has a National League-leading 52 strikeouts for the season.

Sutton and Messersmith certainly are pitching all right," Alston said when asked about his staff in '75. "Doug Rau pitched a great game his last time out and I like what I've seen of Rick Rhoden."

Alston also said that he'll stay with his four-man rotation despite the arrival tonight of Burt Hooton after a three-player deal with the Cubs.

"It's protection in case we need another starter," Alston explained, "but I have no plans for him to start for us. I know he's had a bad time getting going with the Cubs but we still think he has a chance to be pretty good."

Steve Garvey clubbed his second home run of the year and also singled home a run, giving last year's N.L. Most Valuable Player 19 RBI, which ties him for the league lead.

His homer with one out in the fourth inning broke a scoreless tie. Then successive singles by Willie Crawford and Ron Cey

Derby misses its usual electricity

LOUISVILLE (AP) — Trainers put the finishing touches on 15 handsome 3-year-old colts Friday in one of the calmest of the Kentucky Derby in recent years.

Missing was the electric anticipation of last year's centennial running of America's premier horse race. Absent, too, was the overpowering awe that preceded Secretariat's victory in 1973 and Riva Ridge's triumph in 1972.

Still, many of the humans who prepare these equine athletes for the most famous two minutes in the world of sports talked in hushed tones as the months of preparation drew close to the end.

John L. Greer's Foolish Pleasure, last season's juvenile champion and a loser only once in the 11 races of his career, drew most of the attention in the barn area.

DODGERS OBTAIN HOOTEN

The Dodgers obtained pitcher Burt Hooton from the Chicago Cubs Friday in exchange for pitchers Geoff Zahn and Eddie Solomon.

Hooton, 25, had a record of 7-11 with the Cubs last season and is 0-2 with an 8.18 era in three games this year.

Zahn, 28, was 3-5 with the Dodgers last season and 0-1 in two games this season. Solomon had an 11-4 record for Albuquerque of the Pacific Coast League in 1974 and was assigned outright to Albuquerque at the conclusion of spring training.

Hooton has pitched for the Cubs since 1971 with a career record of 34-44. He was a three-time all-America at the University of Texas where he had a 35-3 career record and a 1.14 earned run average in 291 innings.

In 1972 Hooton pitched a no-hitter against Philadelphia in only his fourth major league start. In 1973 Hooton tied for the Cub staff lead with 14 wins and was tops in complete games with 9.

Hooton was selected by the Cubs in the free agent draft of June of 1971.

This past winter Hooton pitched for Licey of the Dominican League, managed by Dodger coach Tommy Lasorda.

Hebner foiled in home debut McGraw leaves 'em nervous in Philly

Combined news services
"Oh mercy," exclaimed Tug McGraw, "what a way to introduce myself to Veterans Stadium."

McGraw held up a shaking left hand, indicating how nervous he was after Pittsburgh's Rich Hebner ripped a fastball with two out in the ninth inning Friday night.

Hebner hit it hard—but not hard enough, and as a result, the Phillies came away with a 9-5 victory and McGraw came away with his first Philadelphia save.

The Phillies led 9-5, when manager Danny Ozark called for McGraw. It was the lefthander's first home appearance since leaving the disabled list.

The Phillies had forged their lead with the help of four unearned runs in the first inning, three on a towering home run by slump-ridden Mike Schmidt. They added a fifth in the second with the help of another Pirate error.

McGraw went to one ball, two strikes on Hebner, when the third baseman rode one to left that looked like it might leave the park. Mike Anderson backed up to the wall, took one step forward and caught it for the third out, sealing the Phillies' victory.

MILLIONTH RUN MAY SCORE TODAY

NEW YORK (UPI)—Major league baseball's millionth run in history is expected to score late tonight or during a game in the eastern time zone on Sunday.

The original forecast was for Sunday but two high scoring games Thursday, in which 11 runs were scored, created the possibility of reaching the million mark some time tonight. Kansas City's 11-0 victory over the Angels and Milwaukee's 17-3 rout of Detroit helped move the total within 209 runs of one million through Thursday night's games.

Walker, a freshman redshirt, haven't seen a second of collegiate action, but they will be throwing to an experienced set of receivers that includes tight end Leannell Jones and wide receivers Zannie Adams and Stanford Brewer. Newcomer Chris West will also see considerable action.

Two receivers, Tom Bhoeme and Long Beach City College transfer Michael Willis, are sidelined with injuries.

The 49ers will be shooting into an Alumni secondary organized and coached by the Houston Oilers' Jeff Severson, who is starting at free safety.

The Alumni also figure to throw a great deal. They have five quarterbacks, including three of the best in Long Beach State history—Bob Dulich, Randy Drake and Jim Fassel.

Drake and Severson are two of the 21 athletes and one coach, Don Reed, that will be honored at halftime as charter members of Long Beach State's Football Hall of Fame.

Angels overcome sure win — blow it

By DON MERRY

ARLINGTON, Tex. — Even an axe couldn't have cut through the gloom of the Angel locker room Friday night. Or the anger.

Hardly a soul moved. When they did it was slow and lugubrious, the telltale signs of abysmal dejection.

On Friday night in Texas, the Angels earned the right to be totally dejected.

Entering the ninth inning, Bill Singer carried a 3-0 lead and was working on a cunning three-hitter. Clearly, it was only a matter of time before the Rangers were laid to rest along with their five-game winning streak.

And it was only a matter of time—before the Rangers put together a four-run inning that began on a bizarre note when Jeff Burroughs struck out only to reach first base safely because strike three was a passed ball.

It ended on a bases-loaded wild pitch by Frank Tanana, the fourth Angel pitcher of the inning, which enabled Joe Lovitto to carry home the run that brought the Texans an improbable 4-3 victory.

When he opened it, he was outwardly composed but seething within.

Told that his players seemed to be taking the defeat with more than a moderate degree of remorse, Williams snapped back, "I hope they're taking it as (bleeping) hard as I am."

When Tanana uncorked his 1-1 pitch to Willie Davis that was beyond the grasp of catcher Ellie Rodriguez and rolled all the way to the distant backstop, Singer made the gesture that epitomized the Angel feelings.

He picked up his glove and hurled it disgustedly onto the field.

"With our bullpen the way it is we need a complete game or a rainout...we didn't get either," Williams said.

Don Kirkwood is out two to three days with a blister on his right hand and Ed Figueroa was slapped with a three-day suspension and a $250 fine for pushing umpire Rich Garcia Thursday in Kansas City.

Singer looked like a lock to go the distance until the untidy ninth inning. The Angels had even give him an extra run to work with in the top of the inning, utilizing three hits and an error.

More than anything else, the ninth inning was a reprise of Thursday night's 11-10 loss at Kansas City when the Angel bullpen snatched defeat from the jaws of victory and pointed up for all to see the one debilitating feature of what otherwise is a respectable ball club.

"I told Dick (manager Williams) if he thinks he can manage without a bullpen, he's crazy," commented coach Whitey Herzog in the stillness of the Angel quarters.

Williams, who embraces defeat with the zeal with which one would accept a death sentence, kept the door to his private office bolted for 25 minutes after the bitter setback.

When he opened it, he was outwardly composed but seething within.

Told that his players seemed to be taking the defeat with more than a moderate degree of remorse, Williams snapped back, "I hope they're taking it as (bleeping) hard as I am."

49er footballers to face Alumni

By JIM McCORMACK
Staff Writer

If anyone gets hurt in tonight's Long Beach State-Alumni football game at Wilson High School at 7, the chances are the injury will be whiplash.

"The football is going to be in the air all night," promises 49er football coach Wayne Howard. "We plan to throw at least 40 times. We want to see what our quarterbacks, Joe Paupau and Brad Walker, can do in a game situation."

Paupau, a junior college transfer, and

Walker, a freshman redshirt, haven't seen a second of collegiate action, but they will be throwing to an experienced set of receivers that includes tight end Leannell Jones and wide receivers Zannie Adams and Stanford Brewer. Newcomer Chris West will also see considerable action.

Two receivers, Tom Bhoeme and Long Beach City College transfer Michael Willis, are sidelined with injuries.

The 49ers will be shooting into an Alumni secondary organized and coached by the Houston Oilers' Jeff Severson, who is starting at free safety.

The Alumni also figure to throw a great deal. They have five quarterbacks, including three of the best in Long Beach State history—Bob Dulich, Randy Drake and Jim Fassel.

Drake and Severson are two of the 21 athletes and one coach, Don Reed, that will be honored at halftime as charter members of Long Beach State's Football Hall of Fame.

The day's activities begin at 4 with an "all-you-can-eat" barbecue. A team of Long Beach doctors will battle a squad of Long Beach policemen in a 5:30 preliminary contest and a post-game party sponsored by the 49er Athletic Foundation is scheduled for the Student Union from 9:30 until 1 a.m.

Cost of the barbecue is $2 for adults and $1 for children under 12. Game admission is $1 and there is a $1 donation for the post-game party.

Los Alamitos earns title tie

By Dennis Brosterhous

Los Alamitos High scored early and often, and then received a strong relief effort from hurler Dennis Mayfield to defeat host Marina, 9-5, Friday, and assure the Griffins a share of the Sunset League title.

Los Alamitos improved its league mark to 11-1, two games ahead of second-place Laora with two contests remaining. Marina is 5-7.

Los Alamitos tallied four times in the first. Scott Poortinga and Mike Carpenter singled. Rick Baird then reached first on an error to load the bases.

After Craig Chamberlain struck out, Rich Wilson delivered a run-scoring base hit. Another error, a single by Kurt Kingsolver and a ground out provided Los Alamitos with the early advantage.

The Griffins added three runs in the second on a pair of walks, a single, a wild pitch and a fielder's choice.

Marina retaliated by knocking Griffin starter Kevin Shelton out of the game in the bottom of the second with a four-run inning. Mike Dapello and Rich La France singled, Larry Arndt walked, Joe Hamilton singled and lead-off man Mark Longnecker delivered the big blow—an RBI double to left-center field.

Mayfield was then called upon to restore some order for Los Alamitos. The left-hander obliged by retiring the next 10 Vikings and allowing only four hits and one run the rest of the afternoon.

Laura cards 75; Astrologues leads

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (UPI) — Maria Astrologues, 23, shooting the best opening round of her career, fired a six-under par 66 to take the first-round lead in the $40,000 Birmingham Classic golf tournament Friday.

Laura Baugh of Long Beach shot 75 while defending champion Jane Blalock was second with a 67.

The Rams Friday announced the signing of 10 draft choices, including giant Doug France, a 6-5, 260-pound offensive tackle from Ohio State.

All will join veteran Rams in spring orientation drills today and Sunday at Long Beach State. The players will be on the field twice each day, at 10:50 a.m. and 2:50 p.m.

France, who played tight end with the Buckeyes, was one of the Rams' three first-round picks.

Also signed by the Rams were defensive back Ron Perry, a fourth-round selection from Colorado; center Rick Nuzum, fifth-round from Kentucky; wide receiver Darius McCarthy, sixth-round from South Carolina State; defensive back John Washington, eighth-round from Tulane; linebacker Gordon Reigel, ninth-round from Stanford; defensive back A.J. Jacobs, 13th-round from Louisville; wide receiver Arthur Allen from Clark College in Atlanta; running back Francis Reynolds, 16th-round from Alcorn A&M, and punter Skip Boyd, 17th-round from Washington.

SC, UCLA await great race

By JOHN DIXON
Staff Writer

UCLA hasn't lost a track meet since 1971, when USC scored a 75-70 surprise.

It won't be a surprise if USC wins today, 1:15, at Westwood. The odds are even.

"There is so much emotion involved," USC coach Vern Wolfe analyzes, "that the early events will go a long way in determining the winner. The long jump, javelin and 440 relay are key events in the early going. If either team can take those three, it

GAHR WINS SUBURBAN

Things are finally beginning to settle down in the Suburban League, and two schools that feel pretty good about it are the No. 1 and No. 2 teams, Gahr and Glenn.

Gahr, which clinched at least a tie for the league championship Tuesday by defeating Cerritos, claimed the title outright Friday afternoon when sophomore Glenn Prater fashioned a three-hit shutout over the Dons, 5-0. The win was the 18th of the season for the Gladiators, a school record.

Prater allowed one single in the first inning and two in the fourth in recording his third victory against one defeat since

Lynwood champs again

Undeclared pitcher Randy Mullins (9-0) struck out 15 men as Lynwood won its third consecutive San Gabriel Valley League championship with a 3-1 victory over Warren Friday afternoon.

The Knights, who clinched a tie for the crown earlier this week, got the runs they needed in the top of the third when Mark Bell homered after Keith Lewis had reached on an error.

Mullins walked only two, and scattered seven Warren hits, with the only run coming on a sixth-inning homer by pitcher Dan McMillan.

Paramount scored two runs in the top of the ninth to defeat Bellflower 4-2.

Mike Roba led off the inning with a walk, reached second on an error and scored on a Tony Hernandez single. An insurance run was added when a miscue by the pitcher and a throwing error by the second baseman allowed Hernandez to score on an attempted steal of third.

Bellflower, despite the loss, had the distinction of pulling off a sports rarity: A TRIPLE PLAY. On a fly ball to the second baseman, the runner on second failed to tag up, and was thrown out. A quick throw to first nailed the runner rounding that base.

Cordero denies 'fix' charges

Combined news services

The New York State Racing and Wagering Board continued an investigation into charges against Angel Cordero Jr. Friday, following accusations that the jockey was involved in the fixing of races.

Trainer John Catter charged Cordero and three other jockeys, none of whom was identified, with fixing triple and exacta races and cashing large payoffs.

Cordero, one of the nation's top jockeys and winner aboard Cannonade in last year's Kentucky Derby, has denied all charges.

"Catter's comments are so stupid I have no answer," the jockey said. "Look at my record. I made over $200,000 each of the last three years. I'm the second leading money winner for the last four years."

"My heart is clean."

WARREN GILES, who survived 18 years as baseball's National League president, advised newly appointed National Basketball Association president Lawrence O'Brien to "administrate with fearlessness and integrity—and forget politics."

The 78-year-old Giles said baseball reached into the political ranks 30 years ago and found that pro sports and politics don't mix.

"A commissioner has to be a super umpire. You can't be a namby pamby," said Giles.

INDIANAPOLIS Motor Speedway officials served notice Friday, on the eve of the start of 500-mile race practice, that "cheaters" will be dealt with severely.

They reacted to published charges that A.J. Foyt cheated on fuel in other USAC-sanctioned big-car events earlier this season and said that every car entered for the May 25 race would be checked several times.

Tom Binford, the speedway's chief steward, said, "We recognize the name of the game is to use the rules to your best advantage, and when you do this, you're apt to step over them. We are prepared to deal with that."

BRIEFLY: Billie Jean King, one of the World Tennis' pioneers, says the WTT won't be profitable. "No WTT team will be a financial success for the next couple of years but this will be a most important year in WTT's development," Ms. King spoke with authority. The Houston EZ Riders announced they were voluntarily withdrawing their entry from the

LBCC seeks 7th state gym crown

BY PAUL McLEOD
Staff Writer

Defending state champion Long Beach City College hosts the California junior college gymnastic finals today.

Golden West, the Vikings, Pasadena and Diablo Valley start team events at noon. A separate evening session for individual competition will be at 7:30. Tickets for adults are $2.00, $1.50 for students with proper identification, and 50 cents for children under 12. No passes will be honored. One ticket is good for both sessions.

LBCC coach John Draghi's squad has won six state titles in a row.

"We're still favored... the team to beat," he says. "Golden West is a super team and so is Pasadena."

NORSE NOTES: Draghi has six key men out of the lineup with injuries. "But we have a lot of depth," he responds. "That's where we'll make-up for it. Golden West is strong. They finally beat Pasadena this year in a dual meet, but we have more depth than any of them. Draghi says Golden West will lead until the final event, where the Vikings 'always pick up points.' Teammates Frank Martin and Carl Cruz will battle for the all-around title. On the parallel bars Martin, Cruz and teammate Pat LaRue are expected to fight it out with Diablo Valley's Bob del Mar. Danny James has an inside shot at the side horse title, while Dan Egan and Jim York back up Schnee on rings. John Hart has added a move on the high bar that "no one in the world can do with his grip," according to Draghi.

In track, the Vikings finish the conference finals at El Camino this afternoon at 3. Tickets are $2.00 for adults, $1.00 for students with ID and 50 cents for children under 12. In baseball, Larry Buckle (8-3) pitches at 1:30 against visiting Pasadena. The Vikings lost their protest of last week's 5-4 loss to the Lancers. El Camino's protest of a 3-1 loss to the Vikings is still pending.

'Love' issue proves jackpot for plucky little airline

By JTM BRIGANCE

DALLAS (AP) — Lamar Muse, dressed like a Neiman-Marcus ad for the good life, admits his small but financially successful airline is a business world break.

Muse has flown his four-plane Southwest Airlines through a major legal loophole at the Dallas-Fort Worth Airport, braved some not so friendly skies across Texas and kept up a David versus Goliath struggle with competitors.

"Nobody could pull it off again, not even us," says Southwest marketing vice president Jess Coker.

Southwest reached the million passenger mark last year and passed the two million mark in mid-April.

The airline reported April 11 record first-quarter net income of $673,000, attributed by Muse to opening of a Rio Grande Valley route. "We flew 8,400 passengers out of the valley during March," Muse said. "In March 1974, with Texas International service, there were 3,600 passengers."

AND ALL this comes when many airlines are grabbing at gimmicks to keep their operations profitable.

"I'm a salesman," Coker says of his job, "and we've sold Southwest Airlines like cans off a grocery shelf."

Coker says fate, circumstance and bravado conspired to launch the intrastate airline. For example, Coker says Braniff International, a "noncompetitor," has been its own worst enemy

"If Braniff had left us alone, had played like we didn't even exist ... If they had let us go into business back in 1968 with our propeller-driven Electras, hell, we'd have been out of business early the next year."

Coker says Southwest has appealed to the "fun" in everyone:

'We wanted the best looking girls in the world as hostesses, in hot pants. Our publicity department has had a lot of fun promotions. We've put the best out front.

"THE AIRLINE industry was at a low ebb in 1971. Braniff had all of the Dallas-Houston, flying market but ... were overconfident in the marketplace. Muse asked me to golf with him one day and explained what he had in mind. I told him it would never work ... He challenged me as a salesman to sell the thing.

"We made a good buy on three Boeings (aircraft). Boeing was giving away airplanes at the time. Lamar said he wanted to compete with the others eyeball to eyeball. First rate service. Keep the flights on time ... We got Bloom Advertising and challenged them. I told them what we wanted to accomplish and that they should just go at it. They did." kept Southwest's name in front of the people. When

One Southwest advertising campaign asked, "Remember what it was like before Southwest Airlines?" Southwest later described itself as "The somebody else up there who loves you."

Love Field issue warmed up to branding iron temperatures, Southwest tweaked the noses of Dallas, Fort Worth and the airlines that were forced to move to the less accessible new Dallas-Fort Worth Airport. The slogan then was "Our Field Is Love."

A Dallas Times-Herald study showed Texans flying out of near downtown Love Field, rather than the new regional airport, saved $24 million in fares and 368,000 travel hours in 1974.

Many pilots are made, but few are chosen

By BOB MARTIN
TV-Radio Editor

Lorne Greene starred for 14 years on NBC's "Bonanza" series, but he hasn't had any luck in efforts to return to television on a regular basis.

You'll recall that "Griff" didn't last long on ABC — that is, if you remember the series at all. Lorne left the saddle and turned private eye in that one.

He returned to NBC and the Old West for a pilot movie, "Nevada Smith," that airs tonight at 8 on Channel 4. He was hoping it would lead to a series in the fall, but "Nevada Smith" isn't on the 1975-76 schedule announced recently by NBC.

Another pilot movie airs at 9:30 tonight on the same network — and it didn't make it, either. Title "A Matter of Wife... and Death," it stars Rod Taylor as private eye Shamus. It originally was scheduled to be shown a few weeks ago, but got bumped by President Ford.

In "Nevada Smith," Greene plays Jonas Cord and Cliff Potts has the title role — a character played by Alan Ladd in "The Carpetbaggers" in 1964 and by Steve McQueen in the theatrical movie "Nevada Smith" in 1966. The two characters were created by Harold Robbins in his best-selling novel "The Carpetbaggers."

WHEN STARS of the stature of Lorne Greene and Rod Taylor are passed over, you can see that getting a TV series isn't the easiest thing in the world. Many, many pilots are made each year and few are chosen.

Other stars whose pilots have been rejected — for the fall season, at least — by NBC include Raymond Burr, as a surgeon in "Buchanan"; Shirley Jones, in "The Lives of Jennie Dolan"; Red Buttons and Harold Gould in a comedy series; James Farentino, as a detective in "The Undercover Man"; Michael Constantine, in a comedy series rather "active" past. (R) on Channel 7 last Saturday at 7:30 p.m. was just a preview of a nationally syndicated series that is scheduled to start airing on a regular basis in the fall. Hosted by the tennis star from Long Beach, it will profile women athletes.

"THE KENTUCKY Derby" coverage will start at 2 p.m. today on Channel 7. And, on radio, KNX (1070 AM), will broadcast the big race at 2:25 p.m., following a pre-race feature to be heard at 2:15 p.m.

WARREN OLNEY, who has been the anchorman on Channel 2's weekend news programs, will shift to Channel 4 starting Monday.

KFI Radio (640 AM) has signed Dick Whittington, formerly of KGIL, to replace Paul Compton in the station's 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. time slot, Monday through Saturday. The change is due to take place in a week or two.

IRENE HOLBROOK of Long Beach, a nutritional consultant at Harbor General Hospital, has been taped demonstrating her behavioral modification techniques in weight reduction for airing on Jess Marlow's "Feeling Fine" segment Monday on Channel 4's 5 p.m. and 11 p.m. news programs.

COUNCILMANICandidates in Long Beach's nine districts will discuss their campaigns in two 60-minute programs to be broadcast on KNAC (105.5 FM). KNAC has invited the two runoff candidates from each district to appear. The first show, covering districts one through five, will be broadcast at 10:30 p.m. Sunday, and the second show a week later.

The candidates will answer questions from KNAC reporters Steve Milner and Jim Harden.

Different habits of springtime

In the warm days of May, with summer not far away, it's no surprise to see Southlanders on the beach pursuing a variety of pastimes. As a group of nuns gathers on the strand for a conference at Royal Palms Beach in San Pedro, a youthful surfer chooses a more aggressive way of communing with nature.

Staff protests Trailback director, walks out

By ROBERT GORE
Staff Writer

Trailback Lodge of Long Beach—already under a joint federal-county investigation for alleged financial mismanagement—was hit Friday by a staff walkout.

Former administrator John Robinson said that 24 workers called in sick Friday and requested a meeting with the board of directors. Among their requests is the removal of J. Bond Johnson as executive director of the lodge.

Johnson acknowledged the walkout and said that he immediately called in volunteer staff and has begun hiring replacements. He said nine persons have called in sick.

"They've quit by not coming in for work," Johnson said, "and we're obliged to provide care for the children. The kids are disappointed—they thought they had some friends."

The staff was protesting Robinson's replacement, Johnson said. He explained that the former lodge director did not have the required nursing home license.

Robinson, however, said he had come within a few days of taking the state test and that the staff would not "return until they get a fair hearing."

The staff is upset over morale and what staff members say they regard as poor management, Robinson said.

"The county has no authority to replace the management of Trailback Lodge," said Supervisor James Hayes. "However, we could remove the wards of the court, but we are not considering it at this time."

Hayes said that members of his staff would meet on Monday with the probation, public social services and health services departments to assess the situation.

Hayes said county inspectors have already visited the lodge "and have reported to me that no one is in any danger and that there is ample staff."

He noted that the probe into the lodge's financial dealings has concerned itself solely with "allegations of overpayment and misuse of county funds." The supervisor said the county considers the program adequate.

A Probation Department spokesman supported Hayes' statements.

Johnson charged that a "malcontent ex-employee" was using "innuendo" to damage the reputation of the lodge. He did not name the employee and said that none of the protesters had contacted him.

The lodge, a nonprofit corporation at 4151 Fountain St., is a juvenile placement home for wards of the court. Funded by the county and federal government, it operates on a budget of more than $1 million annually.

Hayes said the facility, which can accommodate up to 41 wards of the court, currently has 27 children in residence.

MAY FESTIVALS SCHEDULED

The first of four May Festival celebrations, all free and open to the public and sponsored by the Long Beach Recreation Department, will be held from 11 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. today at MacArthur Park, 1325 E. Anaheim St.

On Sunday from 2 to 4 p.m., youngsters from Veterans, Kidd, Cabrillo and Drake parks are scheduled to join in presenting a Renaissance Fair at Veterans Park, 101 E. 28th St.

Songs and dances from Jamaica, Hungary and the U.S. will be featured at the MacArthur Park program, which will include youngsters from California Center and King Park.

Boys and girls from MacArthur Park, representing Jamaica, are scheduled to perform a limbo rock to the accompaniment of the Harmonicon Steel Drum Band. Tropical fruits will be served by the park's advisory council.

The Sunday program at Veterans Park will include a concert by the Long Beach Municipal Band. Songs and dances from Japan, Czechoslovakia, Hawaii and Ghana will be featured, and the activities are scheduled to begin with a karate and judo demonstration by students of the Chuck Norris Karate Studio.

Members of the three participating park advisory councils plan to set up booths for the sale of hot dogs, punch and pastries.

The final two May Festivals are scheduled for Saturday, May 10, at Houghton Park and on Saturday, May 17, at Wardlow Park.

KLON's 25th anniversary to begin stereo programs

By WALT MURRAY
Staff Writer

KLON, the FM radio station operated by the Long Beach Unified School District, is scheduled to mark 25 years of broadcasting next month by going stereo.

New stereo equipment for the 88.1 mhz station is to arrive about May 15, but may not be ready for use until June 1, according to Frank George, media director for the school district.

The new transmitter and studio equipment should increase KLON's listening audience, since some new stereo receivers "skip over" monaural signals, George said.

Almost all FM stations have switched to stereo broadcasting to increase audio quality.

In addition, a new antenna system on Signal Hill is to boost reception on car radios, although it won't increase the strength of KLON's signal on home receivers, George said.

The station broadcasts programs for classroom use in the school district during the morning and early afternoon. It switches to general interest programming in the late afternoon and early evening.

A hook-up with National Public Radio, the nation's only noncommercial radio network, provides a wide range of public service programming for the station.

George said listeners from as far away as San Diego and Santa Barbara have written for the station's weekly listening guide.

However, most of the station's equipment dates to its first day on the air, Jan. 23, 1950.

The gear had to be replaced, and so school officials decided this was a good time to go stereo.

They successfully applied for a $66,000 federal grant for modernization. The school district is putting up an additional $22,000.

Besides putting the new equipment on the air, the station's library of monaural tapes and records will gradually be replaced.

Last Monday, the Long Beach Board of Education applied for an increased grant from the federal Corporation for Public Broadcasting to add an additional four hours on the station's 14-hours-per-day air time.

If the new money is received, it would allow the station to hire more personnel to develop local programs, George said.

He said he hoped the station could do more in areas such as programs for the elderly, for women and for minorities.

Plans are being considered to form a "Friends of KLON" organization to seek private aid for the station, George said.

Legislators meet in Bellflower Local authorities warned to speed transit planning

State legislators meeting in Bellflower Friday warned local officials they were moving too slowly in planning mass transit, and might lose some of their powers.

Chairing the meeting of the Assembly subcommittee on Southern California regional transportation was Assemblyman Frank Vicencia, D-Bellflower.

After planners from several local transit agencies testified their planning was in the early stages, Vicencia replied, "It seems like we've been at this stage for a long time. I hope you will do that (complete planning) very quickly."

"It is difficult for us (legislators) to believe that the Southern California area could get together and put up any united plan, political realities being what they are," Vicencia said.

Vicencia's statement followed testimony by directors of local transit agencies against a bill proposed by Vicencia and Assemblyman Walter Ingalls, D-Riverside.

The Ingalls-Vicencia bill would create transportation planning commissions in Los Angeles, Orange, Riverside and San Bernardino counties. These commissions would do short-range planning, decide who gets state and U.S. transit funds, and would coordinate activities of local bus lines.

The other two assemblymen at the subcommittee hearing Friday were Ingalls and Fred Chel, D-Long Beach.

The bill is scheduled to be heard by the full Transportation Committee in late May. Ingalls, who is chairman of the larger group, made it plain that the bill had an excellent chance of at least reaching the floor of the Assembly.

Representatives of local agencies were generally against the measure.

"You're creating another level of government which will inhibit, not help," said Councilman Gil Smith of Carson, who represented the League of California Cities.

Ray Remy, executive director of the Southern California Association of Governments (SCAG), asked that SCAG retain both the long and short-range planning functions.

Remy noted that under the proposed bill SCAG would keep only long-range, broad powers.

"I question whether SCAG has the authority—or at least the muscle—to do this (short-range planning)," replied Vicencia.

Chel said that the commission governing Los Angeles County's transit planning would have nine members, including two county supervisors, two from the city of Los Angeles, two from other cities (one of which must have a municipal bus line), one appointed by the governor, one appointed by the State Senate president and one appointed by the Assembly speaker.

Fiesta time

Little señoritas and charros dance their way through a combination May Day and Cinco de Mayo celebration Friday in Bixby Park. About 300 children from the Headstart program and 350 elderly participants in the hot food programs got together for the party, sponsored by the Commission on Economic Opportunities. Maypoles, arts and crafts displays were part of the festivities. Photo by BOB SHUMWAY

Bribe trial date set

A new trial date of July 14 was set Friday for assistant Orange County Assessor George Upton and electronics executive James Buxton, each accused of bribery.

They were to have gone to trial in the Santa Ana Superior Court May 12, but their counsel convinced Judge Everett Dickey Friday that there was not enough time to prepare their defense.

Upton, 54, is accused of accepting about $900 worth of electronics gear for his boat in return for alleged lower valuations on the Garden Grove warehouse of the Radio Shack stores, a chain of retail outlets operated by the Tandy Corp.

The 40-year-old Buxton, a vice president of the Tandy Corp., is accused of three counts of giving bribes to a public official.

Both men were indicted on the charges by the Orange County Grand Jury.

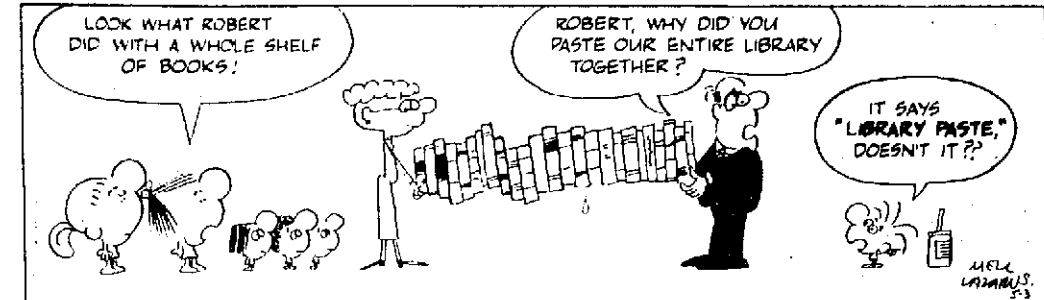

Earlier, the grand jury had indicted Upton and eight others who worked in the assessor's office, accusing them all of charging the county for time they spent on the 1972 campaign of then-Assessor Andrew Hinshaw, who won election to Congress that year.

The nine men, including two who are in retirement, are due to go to trial in the Santa Ana Superior Court on June 9.

YOUR HOROSCOPE by JEANE DIXON Forecast for Sunday

Your birthday today: Once you pass the crosscurrents early in the upcoming year, intuition sets in and guides you to successful adjustments and greater prosperity. Naturally, you'll have to work hard to get the best results. Relationships are puzzling at times but generally satisfying. Today's natives are usually intrigued with mystical or metaphysical ideas, always able to tell a good story.

Aries (March 21-April 19): Keep your arrangements simple this Sunday. Many temptations and opportunities for social competition exist on all sides. Be selective or consider staying at home.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Travel is not favored. Pay attention to health care and household conditions. Leave your friends to pursue their own expensive ideas.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): If you've been patient, you'll find those you have done much for you lately are more amiably disposed. Try for a better place for yourself, reconcile recent disagreements.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Stick close to home base and rest, making possible a bit of necessary maintenance, greater perspective on belongings and how to improve them.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): Social action runs to extremes and is just as well passed up; find relaxation in hobbies and mental pastimes. Someone at a distance is waiting to hear from you, so keep in touch.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Bear in mind how fortunate you are with what you have, and give some thought to the way you are using it. Later hours lend themselves to sensible planning.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Your money gets away all too easily, leaving very little to show for it. Discussion of plans drifts into unrealistic schemes, perhaps dissension. There'll be another time!

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Peace with relatives is easier to keep than to recover today. There's enough to do elsewhere to use up energy if you're restless. Some short journeys are probably necessary.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Make your usual Sunday contribution to your community; pick up a neglected hobby, explain it to others who are interested. Introductions lead to future benefits.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Seek serenity first. External conditions are more easily managed as the day wears on once you face current issues. Be prepared to abide by decisions reached today.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Today finds you at a peak of a personal cycle, good influences going in your favor. Make your wishes and feelings known. Skip any work you can so you aren't distracted.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): The subtle details of home life are more satisfying than casual travel, sightseeing, visits. It's good to know who takes the initiative to come to you and who doesn't.
